Johnson Arrives in Uruguay for Hemispheric Summit Conference

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — President Johnson arrived today for a milestone summit conference and pledged the United States to support the cause of the Latin American people "which does not admit of the slightest delay." But he faced serious snags in the negotiations on Latin America's economic future.

The President, setting foot on South American soil for the first time brought a plea that the pace of the Alliance for Progress be quickened.

This was the business before foreign ministers of 19 nations who have been meeting here for long, wearing hours in advance of Wednesday's first formal summit session.

But, as a U.S. government source put it, the United States is faced here with a choice between "desirable policy and harsh necessity." This referred to Latin American pleas for unrestricted use of U. S. loan dollars to buy anywhere in the world market. It involves the critical problem of an unfavorable U.S. balance of payments.

The President, smiling and looking relaxed, waved to welcomers as he stepped from the helicopter that brought him to this sun-splashed rich man's resort from Montevideo.

The President made his formal arrival remarks during welcoming ceremonies in Montevideo, Uruguay's capital, delivering in Spanish the statement about the cause of the people that admits no delay.

Four helicopters escorted his craft into nearby Punta del Este, three of them with state and security men and one with security men. A Uruguayan fighter plane flew cover, adding to the U.S. security men's nervousness since apparently they had not been briefed on its appearance.

Security was extraordinarily tight in a zone of three square miles around Beaulieu, the villa assigned to President Johnson. Not a single disturbing incident has taken place here despite Communist agitation.

Swarms of police and troops surrounded the security zone of three square miles in the villa area. All access in and out of Punta del Este was heavily guarded. Antiaircraft guns were in strategic positions. Destroyer escorts and a communications ship prowled the water just off the coast of the Punta del Este Peninsula.

The official reception for the U.S. President — the bands, the color guards, the salute and the whole gamut of state visit ceremony — was restricted to Montevideo.

In Punta del Este, the arrival was all business with presidential aides and Secretary of State Rusk waiting to greet him.

Because of Communist agitation, extreme security measures kept visitors away from the Montevideo airport and only reporters and officials were present when Johnson arrived.

Johnson was welcomed to Uruguay by President Oscar Gestido. He pumped Johnson's hand and in a short speech told him his visit "fills us with joy for you are the respresentative of an eminent people."

Johnson landed in brilliant sunlight and the temperature was 86 degrees, unusually high for autumn in this part of the hemisphere.

Johnson, garbed in a dark blue suit and blue necktie, was the first to emerge from the helicopter. He waved amiably to the waiting welcomers.

Three of the accompanying helicopters also carried members of the President's staff. The fourth of the escort was all security, who were reported nervous about the Uruguayan fighter plane flying cover. It was reported that the security men had not been briefed on this.

Security has been so extraordinarily tight however, that despite Communist threats to stage some sort of uproar, not a single Communist had yet appeared on the scene.

Court Rules Draft Card Burning Act Of Free Speech

BOSTON AP -- Draft card burning is "a demonstration of free speech," the 1st U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled, and it said the amendment to the Selective Service law prohibiting it is unconstitutional.

The ruling Monday was in the case of David Paul O'Brien, 21, of Framingham, who was sentenced to six years in prison after publicly burning his draft card.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich upheld the conviction, however, because O'Brien had violated another section of the law by not having the card in his possession.

Aldrich sent the case back to U. S. District Court with instructions to vacate the six-year sentence and impose a new one. He said he feared the original term had been imposed because of public burning.

Helpful 4-Year-Old Gets Rid of Dad's Car

QUENIBOROUGH, England AP - Four-year-old Bruce Rambaldini heard his father tell his mother they ought to get rid of the family car. So Bruce set it on fire and burned it out.

John Rambaldini, a mechanic, was talking at breakfast Monday about selling his 1958 sedan and buying a new car. The words that stuck in Bruce's mind were: "We ought to get rid of the car."

Later in the morning, Bruce got a box of matches. He kept striking them and throwing them into the car until it was ablaze.

Said the child's mother: "The first I knew about it was when he came back into the kitchen and told me: I've done what daddy wanted".

"I looked out and saw the car blazing. It was too late to do anything.

"Perhaps I should smack Bruce for this but I just can't do it. He is an obedient little boy and he honestly thought he was helping his dad."

'Man of All Seasons' Top Film Winner

California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy — ex-movie stars themselves — applauded the presentations from eighth row center and guffawed as master of ceremonies Bob Hope quipped:

"Tonight we salute Hollywood, the birthplace of politicians. Soon we'll need another category — best performance by a governor."

"A Man for All Seasons," the struggle of Sir Thomas More against King Henry VIII's scheming lieutenants, was acclaimed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as Best Picture of 1966.

It won Oscars also for Paul Scofield, in the title role; its director, Fred Zinnemann; and for color cinematography, costume design and screenplay.

Scofield, 45, was in England rehearsing a play. His Oscar was accepted by Wendy Hiller, nominated for her supporting role in "A Man for All Seasons."

"Virginia Woolf," the profanity-studded clash of a couple whose hate is grounded in love, brought a second Oscar to Elizabeth Taylor, 35, who won in 1960 for "Butterfield 8."

"Woolf" was acclaimed also for black and white cinematography, costume design and art direction.

Sandy Dennis, the young college professor's wife in "Woolf," received the supporting-actress award.

"The other day as I was falling off my bicycle, I had the following thoughts: I was given a juicy part, allowed to work with talented, exhilarating, beautiful people and received a great deal of money. Really" — glancing at his Oscar — "don't you think this is going too far?"

Richard Burton and Miss Taylor were at work on "The Comedians" in France. By telephone, she said she was glad to have won but sorry that her nominee husband hadn't.

Miss Dennis, 23, a Nebraskan born in Hastings and reared in Lincoln, received the news of her victory while dining in a New York restaurant with her husband, jazz saxophonist Gerry Mulligan.

Execution Stay Angers Man Condemned to Die

REIDSVILLE, Ga. AP -- A convicted rapist, only 45 minutes away from death in Georgia's electric chair, has described his 60 day reprieve as a "great injustice."

William Patrick Clark was scheduled to die at 10:45 a.m. Monday. At 10 a.m. Gov. Lester Maddox stayed the execution to allow a sanity commission to examine him.

Clark, 29, convicted of raping a 19-year-old DeKalb County girl on her way home from church last year, had said he was ready to die. He expressed anger at the stay.

"He must be nuts," Maddox said in staying the execution.

Birth Control Favored

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today advanced a bill to allow public dissemination of birth control information and killed another to open all barber and beauty shops to anyone regardless of race, creed or color.

The barber and beauty shop bill died on a 76-83 vote. Only one member voiced opposition.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, said the proposal goes beyond the federal public accommodations act. Now only those barber and beauty shops located in motels and hotels must accept all customers.

The birth control bill was moved forward on a voice vote. It would, in effect, let the state welfare and health divisions disseminate birth control information, particularly to those persons on welfare.

It would also allow the open sale of birth control devices or drugs.

Rep. Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, lost in his effort to change the bill so birth control

Town Proud of Being Backward

RADEC, Calif. AP -- The people of Radec are proud because their town is backward. The backwardest place there is, they call it.

So backward, in fact, that townspeople even spell its name that way.

But the 10 families have a beef with the highway department--there are no road signs to let motorists know they have been in town.

"Radec isn't much," says David Welch, a town father of this village 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles. "No sidewalks. No street lights. At night the place is so dark those going through don't even know what they've missed."

Welch has strung six signs around his house. All read "Radec."

The village got its post office years ago, and the townspeople had to decide on a name. They wanted "Cedar."

"Up until we got the post office," says Vivian McGaugh, "we were nameless. When someone would ask where do you live, we would always say 15 miles up the road from Temecula."

There already was a Cedar, Calif.

"We couldn't think of anything else, so we spelled Cedar backwards and we've been Radec ever since," Mrs. A. E. Bergman said.

Irene Welch, proprietor of the town's only general store, was asked by a visitor to point out some of the outstanding features of Radec, nestled in the Aguba Tibia mountains.

"You got me stumped," she replied. "I can't think of a thing."

Clinton Davidson has asked the state for "City Limit" signs so people will know "They've been to the most backward place in the nation."

City to Open Battle on Mosquitoes

The city will begin spraying for mosquitoes in neighborhoods in the southwest part of town beginning at sundown today, City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

The spraying crew will try to cover the west section of town tonight. It will work until 1 a.m. or 2 a.m.

Tomorrow night the crew will begin spraying the east section of town.

The spraying will continue throughout the week.

Koch to Be Club Pilot

Fred Koch, manager of Reliable Life Insurance Company, was elected president of the Rotary club last night at a meeting in the Rustic Rock Inn. He will succeed Thatcher Scism.

Other officers named were Melvin McMackins, vice president; Alex Waters, secretary; and Ferrell Miller, treasurer.

The club unanimously affirmed a slate of officers presented by a nominating committee composed of past presidents of the club of which Stoner was chairman.

The club was told how pathology aids diagnosis of diseases for the living and how it helps survivors of the dead by Dr. Stephen Parks, pathologist at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

All tests in the hospital are under supervision of the pathologist.

Dr. Parks said that autopsies are useful to determine cause of death, whether homicide or suicide, the effectiveness of drugs, tracing the course of disease. The post mortems assist doctors, members of the family and in some cases law enforcement officers and lawyers.

If an inherited disease caused death the family may benefit from the information.

Dr. Parks said that to become accredited a hospital must have a pathologist on its staff and that autopsies must be performed on 20 per cent or more of patients who die there.

Allan Hubbard reported that there were 362 people served at the club's chili day April 3.

The Tri State Hospital for Crippled Adults in Memphis asked the club be polled whether members favored raising racial barriers for patients. Members approved admission of Negroes.

S. W. Duckworth was welcomed back in the club after spending the winter in Brownswood, Tex.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
MRS. HARRY SHARP SR.

Once again the angel of death visited Sikeston and called home one of Sikeston's most beloved and respected women, Mrs. Harry (Madge) Sharp.

She was beloved of our mother and our wife so she must have been one of God's chosen children.

Every hour of her life was full and used constructively.

Her house was in order. She is now with Harry where we know she wanted to be.

The American press has been coming in for its share of criticism, maybe more than its share.

This comment is prompted by a case showing that the rumored death of crusading journalism is highly exaggerated.

Robert G. Aldrich has been in the newspaper business for more than 17 years. Ever since 1963, he's been editor and publisher of the Addison "Advertiser," a weekly with a circulation of about 1,000, published in a small, upstate New York community.

On a July day in 1964, a 35-year-old father, who lived in Addison, died when his car crashed into a jack-knifing semi-trailer truck at a bridge over a railroad.

Touched by the tragedy, Aldrich began to dig into the record of the overpass, which had a reputation as a danger spot in the community. It was well merited, the newspaperman found. Over the preceding four years, accidents at the bridge had claimed, on average, one human life every 60 days.

Aldrich investigated and found:

--A sharp S-curve on one side of the bridge, coupled with pavement that had a tendency to be slippery, often resulted in trucks going out of control.

--Drivers approaching from the other direction had their vision of the bridge obscured by a slight rise; this prevented them from seeing that another vehicle was out of control.

--A center beam in the bridge, because of the angle of approach, looked much lower than it was, and clearance notices were posted right on the bridge; truckers often slammed on their brakes suddenly because they feared their loads were too high for the bridge.

Aldrich poured it on highway and railroad officials in scathing editorials and feature stories. He organized local merchants, who took out ads in the "Advertiser" to support his crusade.

In an open letter to government officials, Aldrich charged:

"If accidents persist in the same location...then there must be an accessory to the crime because the situation has been unchanged."

The results: The troublesome beam was taken down, rumble pavements were installed, and oversize reflective signs warning of the special danger were posted, along with advance warning of the clearance. Finally, the bridge has been surveyed for replacement.

Since that death in July, 1964, and the taking of corrective action, Robert Aldrich has been honored by an award from his fellow publishers. What's more important, there have been no fatalities - in fact, no accidents - at the bridge.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL SAID

"Still, if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival. There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

For one thing, this birthplace of the New Yorker magazine and longtime rendezvous of the Roundtablers of a generation ago, refuses to go ultra modern with its elevators. The cars are late models, but all carry operators.

"The day we need self - service elevators is the day I sell the Algonquin," Ben Bodne, owner, promises.

There's a rule requiring men to wear ties, and women to be clad in skirts if they want to enter the dining room. Brendan Behan, the playwright, who practiced a high degree of sartorial noncomfornity, tried to crash the Rose Room without a tie, and lost that round.

Tallulah Bankhead charged into the dining room clad in slacks, but Raul, the maitre d", turned thumbs down. Finally, after considerable debate, he fastened a tablecloth around her, everybody was happy, and tradition triumphed.

Go to the Algonquin once; 20 years later staff members will call you by name.

"It was a hep cat, Judge," came the reply.

According to reports, the Capitol is still in a state of shock over the guilty verdict that a federal district court jury handed down against Bobby Baker.

What now concerns Capitol Hill cynics is that the Court of Appeals, whose chief judge is the very liberal David Bazelon, will discover some new technicality that the Supreme Court will accept and invalidate the Baker conviction or order a new trial.

With Baker having so many friends in high places, Capitol Cynics still remain unconvinced that he will ever serve any time in jail.

If this does happen, the American people have had it.

"Overconfidence in one's ability to drive can be a deadly state of mind," it was noted today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"A person who is overconfident in his driving tends to relax his guard. Should a traffic accident situation suddenly develop, that person will find it difficult to adjust to the situation and avoid the accident."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that drivers tends to be especially overconfident in their driving in certain instances. For example, they often relax behind the wheel when the weather is good. They look at the scenery and allow it to distract them from their main job of driving. Statistics show that most accidents occur in clear weather.

Traveling on a straight thoroughfare also brings about a feeling of overconfidence to many drivers. A driver can see a great distance ahead on these roadways and feels he will be able to readily see any danger. Records of the Highway Patrol indicate that most of our accidents occur on straight roads.

Another instance when drivers tend to be overconfident is when traffic is light at night. Motorists tend to increase their speed, and as a result many are unable to avoid an accident situation. Although there is a greater amount of traffic during the day, a significant number of Missouri's rural fatal accidents last year occurred at night.

"Drivers must always be on the alert for potential accident situations," the Colonel declared. "No matter what the weather may be, no matter what type of road is traveled, and no matter how much traffic is in the area, drivers must be on guard and concentrate on their driving at all times.

"Confidence in one's driving ability is fine, but overconfidence can be tragic. Caution and constant attention are the price of accident-free driving in today's traffic," he concluded.

A middle-aged woman, society dowager type, walked into a hat shop on Fifth Avenue. She pointed to a hat in the window. "That green hat with the feathers," she said. "Would you be kind enough to take it out of the window for me?"

"That's very good of you," said the woman walking towards the exit. "That awful thing bothers me every time I pass."

A very attractive, but unhappy woman, finding no solution for her problems turned to psychiatry. On her first visit the psychiatrist obtained a bit of her medical history. The psychiatrist, in questioning her, found out that the woman was 35 years of age and had been married three times. Upon further questioning the woman admitted that she was still a virgin. The doctor was dumbfounded. "How," he asked, "could you remain a virgin and still be married three times?"

"Well, doctor, I think this is the root of my problem," said the woman. "The first time I got married I was very young. The man was very handsome but our marriage was soon broken up before it was consummated when I found out my husband was cheating on me with the milkman. Several years later, I decided to re-marry. But this time I thought I would be smart, so I married a very old man. He was 89 years old, rich and feeble. He died on me within months, having never touched me . . . and he left me very rich. So I travelled around and met many men. Then I met Harry. He was tall, well-built, virile-looking and intelligent . . .everything a woman could want. So after a whirl-wind courtship we were married."

"But I don't understand," queried the doctor, "you say he is virile, everything a woman could want. Your history shows you've been married three years, yet you're still a virgin?"

"It's this way," the woman answered. "My husband is an advertising executive. For three years now, every night he comes home, sits on the edge of the bed and tells me how wonderful it's going to be!"

BUILD PRIDE IN U.S.

Our public schools and colleges have been the target of growing criticism for failure to teach the economic principles on which the United States was built and freedom rests.

In a recent editorial, the Rocky Mount, North Carolina, Telegram said: "According to the Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce, precious few students know. . .about our free enterprise system."

A questionnaire was circulated among the junior and senior classes of a Forsyth County high school, one of the questions being, "Which of the following do you think should be government - owned or operated: Railroads, Banks. Steel Companies. None. (Only 34 per cent said they felt none should be government-owned.)"

A second question: "Do you agree that the fairest economic system takes from each according to his ability and gives to each according to his needs?" Said the Telegram, "Now here is where we run head-on into the fantastic ignorance of high school students about Communist economic philosopyy and socialism. On the foregoing question, half of the students answered yes. That question states the key feature of the Communist economic theory . . .The Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce sees the need for better understanding of the free enterprise system -- by promoting it in the schools. The idea will probably be tried through a general course on basic economics offered to teachers. With a firmer background in basic economics for teachers, it is felt the students then can receive a better economic understanding of the free enterprise system."

H. L. Hunt Says

AMEND, NOT REWRITE THE CONSTITUTION

There are enormous dangers to individual freedom inherent in the current campaign to call a Constitutional Convention. Although the movement is being spearheaded under the guise of preventing further federal encroachment in the affairs of individual citizens, the fact is if such a Convention were called it would open a veritable Pandora's box of trouble and probably result in further loss of liberty.

For this reason patriots should not support resolutions requesting Congress to call a Constitutional Convention. When the Constitution was drafted 180 years ago it was contemplated that it could always be amended, and it has been so amended 25 times, nearly always for the good of freedom.

But the fact remains that under the present Constitution an infant nation grew to greatness unparalleled in the history of the world. It is therefore sheer folly to risk losing the constructive provisions of the U.S. Constitution by holding a Constitutional Convention at a time when a constructive atmosphere is less prevalent than usual. Delegates to a new Constitutional Convention would no doubt be subjected to bloc pressures and a myriad of other political pressures, or could follow their whims and rewrite the Constitution in a manner that could be devastating to all hope of freedom.

Patriots should urge their Legislatures to pass resolutions asking only for specific amendments. Really constructive action is for State Legislatures to pass a resolution directing Congress to immediately initiate and submit to the States for ratification a Constitutional Amendment providing for apportionment of at least one House of State Legislatures on a basis other than population. Then another resolution should be passed directing initiation of another amendment providing for a fair and just reform of the Electoral College System. HLH.

The acorns are memories. Planted in the heart, they take root there and in time become mighty oak trees, and pleasant indeed it is at times to lie in their green shade and recall the past.

When it comes to saving up memories, every man is his own midas. No other human being in the world can quite match his hoard, for each collection is unique and personal.

But it is fun to share memories. And you've got a pretty good collection yourself if you can look back and remember when:

In a small town nothing really memorable usually happened except on Saturday nights. During the week you talked about what you had done last Saturday night and what you looked forward to doing next Saturday night.

Every school desk held an inkwell, and sooner or later every young lad succumbed to the temptation to dip into the inkwell a braid from the girl who sat at the desk in front of him.

Only spendthrifts or very wealthy men bought suits that had only one pair of pants.

Nobody thought cigarettes caused cancer, but it was agreed by many that if you smoked them regularly you were pretty likely to come down with tuberculosis, which then was just as feared.

Children didn't expect their parents to keep them entertained. They could spend a whole afternoon happily blowing soap bubbles through an old corncob pipe.

It was a mark of real affluence to be able to have a cast iron stag in your front lawn.

You didn't have to be a contortionist to get in and out of automobiles. They had running boards to step on.

A nickel cherry pop was the most popular soft drink in America. But if you wanted to make a big splurge you bought your best girl a 10-cent ice cream soda—just to let her know that when she went out with a real sport like you nothing was too good for her.

You knew you were in an up-and-coming town when the undertaker (he also ran the furniture store) sold off his horses and bought a motorized hearse.

A small boy couldn't make up his mind whether to grow up and be the engineer of a train or the conductor who took up the tickets and also, with an air of judicious gravity, would pull a big gold watch from his pocket and tell passengers exactly what time it was—to the exact second.

It was thought that, if there should ever be a second world war, the weapon most to be feared would be poison gas.

A big chunk of the U.S. population still preferred to pay cash and thought it somewhat immoral to buy anything on credit.

Those were the days! Remember?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- To understand the full tragedy of Adam Clayton Powell as he faces reelection in Harlam today, you have to know the story of his father.

It was his father's Baptist church in Harlem that Adam Junior inherited, and Adam senior talks glowingly of his son in his autobiography, "Against the Tide."

Certainly the Powells, both father and son, rose to the top against the tide. It's important to consider this, and their background, as congress passes judgment on Adam and whether he should be seated again.

From the grandson of a slave to the chairmanship of one of the most important committees of congress is a long way to come in half a century. Achievement, however, also merits responsibility.

Adam senior was born in Franklin County, Va., 25 days after Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. He never knew his father. His mother was part Indian and her father German.

"My maternal grandmother," wrote Adam sr., "was very fond of eating rats. She was a great hunter of small game. My earliest recollections were of direst poverty. The wealth of the south had been destroyed by the civil war and both white and poor colored suffered together.

"There was not a white man within twelve miles of our cabin who'd pay a wage of 50 cents a day or a white woman able to pay more than 25 cents for a day's washing.

REARED IN POVERTY

"Mr. Albert Martin rented us a one-room log cabin with about five acres of land for $1 a month. Everything we could raise on these five acres belonged to our family. Our big job was to raise this $1 every month for rent and to pay for a yoke of oxen which we had bought on the instalment plan.

"It required about six years to pay for these oxen. Old Buck and Bill died about a year after our last instalment was met, and we had shoes made from their hides. It was the first time the whole family had had new shoes at one time. Many a time on a frosty morning when the ground was covered with snow, I made the cow get up so I could warm my feet on the ground where she had lain for the night.

"We slept, bathed, cooked, ate and entertained in one room. Breakfast was served religiously at 6 a.m. I recall one year when our crops were so poor that both our corn and wheat were exhausted in the month of April, and we lived on dried apples and black - eyed peas for six weeks until the new crop matured. Even to this day the smell of dried apples nauseates me.

"The first big day in my life was October 1, 1897. On that day I discarded my old, torn shirt, put on a pair of trousers woven by my grandmother, and started to school. The school was five miles from our cabin and was taught by a white man named Jake Bowles. That morning, when I entered the log schoolhouse, I could not name a single letter. The alphabet looked to me like a crossword puzzle. When school dismissed that evening, I could name the twenty - six letters which make the English language. The next day I said them backwards."

Adam Sr. tells in detail how the family moved to West Virginia, how he worked in the coal mines making $80 to $100 a month. "But every dollar of this and all I could borrow," he added, "was sacrificed to the demon of gambling which possessed me, soul and body. On March 1, 1885, I had lost all my wages, $40 of borrowed money and my overcoat. Aside from my dirty mining clothes, my wardrobe had been reduced to a pair of cheap trousers and a red sweater.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL

"Something happened that week stranger than any piece of fiction I ever read. The saloons and the gambling dens were deserted Saturday night, and people walked the streets in hushed silence. I learned that all the drifting Christians, who were the main supporters of the dives, had gone to the Methodist and Baptist churches on Friday night. Each of these two churches had begun a week of prayer on January 1 that had continued nightly for two months. . . It seems as if some unseen messenger had slipped into every home, hut, dive, den and whispered, 'something is going to happen at the churches. Come out and witness it for yourself.' . . .

"Five preachers came out of that revival, and this writer was one of them."

However, Adam's father still experienced plenty of ups and downs. He went to Howard University Law School in Washington in 1887 as a step toward being elected to congress, but never got to congress because "first, I overrated myself, and secondly, I took the wrong path." He began preaching. He preached in churches in Philadelphia, New Haven and finally the Abyssinian church in New York where he became one of the greatest pastors of his day.

"If I had the privilege of selecting the race into which I wanted to be born and to work," wrote Adam Sr., "I would select the race in which I was born and in which I have lived and worked, for this race needs me more than any other race."

His son Adam rose to even greater heights in the government of the United States and did more to break the handcuffs of the Negro than any other man of his race -- until he fell by the wayside. But just as Adam sr. put liquor and women aside in the coal -mining towns of West Virginia, so it may be possible for Adam jr., to do likewise.

These are things which congress should remember. Certainly Adam's sins were not as great as those of a certain senator from Connecticut or a certain anti-Negro congressman from South South Carolina. What the House of Representatives will have to decide when Adam Jr. stands before its bar seeking admission again is whether there shall be one cause for the white goose from Connecticut, another sauce for the black gander from Harlem.

The bison was America's most numerous most prodigious, most useful beast

The Buffalo was not only meat for the Indian, he was just about everything.

Dried meat was pounded fine, then mixed with berries, put into watertight skins, and covered with melted tallow to make pemmican, a long - lasting food. Hair was woven into pillows and saddle pads. Marrow was dug out of the bones and preserved in bladder skins to be used later as food. The skull was used in ceremonial dances.

Hides were turned over to the squaws, who fashioned them into tepees, shields, bedrolls, ropes, winter robes, snowshoes, and boats. Jawbones were the children's delight; they used them for sliding. Sinews provided bowstrings and sewing materials. The stomach was made into pails and bags.

Bones become clubs or tools. Hooves were made into glue.

Planning Meals for Over 65

By Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
University Extension Center

KENNETT - In the United States there are about 15 million citizens who have passed their 65th birthday-citizens who have shed the responsibilities of an occupation and who are free to enjoy their leisure. But, many of these old folks are not enjoying this leisure as much as they might. They are not as healthy as they might be if they would make food a strong ally, letting it help in every possible way. Being poorly nourished is often the reason for the complaints that drag an older person down...the chronic tired feeling...a gloomy outlook on life...loss of sleep... and yes,...even too much weight.

Being well fed is such an advantage, and being poorly fed is such a handicap, that it is worth the effort to move out of the not-well-enough-fed class and into the ranks of the wise eaters.

Satisfying meals can be planned daily from the four food groups. The minimum amount of food suggested for each day includes: two glasses of milk, four or more ounces of protein to be chosen from meat, poultry, fish or eggs, four servings of vegetables and fruit, (to include a dark green or yellow vegetable and a citrus fruit each day), and four servings of bread and cereal. These basic foods will supply the body with protein for maintenace of tissue and bones, minerals and vitamins for the regulation of body systems, and calories for warmth and energy.

There are many economical choices and interesting combinations possible among these four food groups. Fats, sweets, and other foods may be added to round out meals. For the best health, the minimum number of servings from each of the food groups should be chosen first, and then enough other foods to satisfy the appetite and maintain the best weight, can be added.

Purchasing and preparing the foods necessary for wise eating often becomes a burden for our older folks. Purchasing food for two may be made easier if these suggestions are kept in mind:

Buy no more food than can easily be used. A large economy-sized package or a large quantity of specially priced food is no bargain if it becomes spoiled or disliked before it is used.

Prices should be compared on the basis of price per serving rather than price per pound.

Keep up on the current food prices, purchasing those foods that are plentiful at lower cost.

Canned meat and fish may be cheaper than fresh meat. Too, they can be stored on the shelf easily; but, they do require more imagination to prepare them in interesting ways.

Split peas, dried beans and peanut butter, when used with a protein source such as milk, meat, egg or cheese, provide a good buy for main dishes.

Milk bills can be lowered by using non-fat dry milk in place of fluid milk.

Like purchasing, the preparation of meals for two, or one, can be simplified or streamlined. Cooking for two is easier if the recipes are for one or two servings. Recipes close at hand add vitalizing variety to meal preparation.

A professor from a New York City college delivered a powerful speech before a teachers' group. Reporter Bill Longgood heard about it, phoned the professor and asked for an interview so that he could write a newspaper feature on the learned gentleman's views. "Ah," said the professor, "I am flattered, indeed. Your offer tempts me, and I wish I could say yes. Unfortunately I must say no. You see, I've got only this one speech, and if you print it I'm dead."

WHO IS A QUALIFIED MECHANIC

Displayed neatly on the wall at your dentist's, doctor's or lawyer's office, you are likely to see diplomas from this chool and that. These pieces of parchment tell you that your professional man has successfully completed the courses that qualify him to practice his trade. If you ask me, he probably will tell you that during the course of his career he never stops going to school, never stops learning. He must keep up with the latest findings of research and the new methods of diagnosis, treatment or procedure.

So it is with a good mechanic, and he enjoys a benefit that most professional men do not have. Lots of his schools are tuition free. All he has to do is take advantage of them. These schools are provided by manufacturers of automotive parts and equipment. They are designed to teach mechanics how to work on new, sophisticated automotive parts and how to use equipment for diagnosis and treatment of automotive ailments.

Mrs. Mae Harper, a vivacious mechanic of Los Angeles, holds 40 degrees from such schools. She and her husband own and operate an automotive service shop. They see to it that they and all their employees attend every school available to them. And they make every effort to furnish their shop with the best equipment to be had. Mrs. Harper, her husband and their employees are qualified mechanics.

Your own mechanic may be just as conscientious as Mrs. Harper is, but chances are you won't know it unless you ask. Next time you visit his shop, take a look around. You just might see a diploma or two hanging on the wall. And you might check to see if there is any literature lying around, too; printed matter that your mechanic studies so he will know what is going on in his trade. These things, plus his attitude about you and your car, can help you determine whether or not your mechanic is qualified. If he is more interested in helping you prevent problems that he is in fixing them after the fact, if he is careful about leaving no stone unturned until he has located the source of a problem, then you have found yourself a qualified mechanic. Stick with him.

SHS Golf
By Arnie

Bulldog golfers won their third straight match of the season yesterday by defeating the Dexter Bearcats by 17 strokes, 165-182. The Bulldog record for the season is three wins against only one loss.

Red-hot "Ned" Matthews and Chuck Meyer took medalist honors for the Dogs. Both boys shot a three over par, 39. Rounding out the top four for Sikeston were Jim Godsey and Charles Stamp. Godsey had a 43 and Stamp finished with a 44.

Senior David Cowan was low man for the Bearcats with a 40. Other Dexter scores included Lynch 44, Agey 45, and Kirkbride 53.

The SHS golfers have now run their victory string to nine on the Sikeston course. The last home defeat was in 1964 when the Bulldogs fell to Cape Girardeau Central.

The Dogs didn't have the hot hand yesterday but turned in respectable scores.

The golfers started off well in the first matches but have trouble with individual scores consistency. This could mean trouble in the district match in May.

Presidential Opener To Yankees; Dodgers Start Where They Left Off

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Yankees were back at their old stand today, but Ralph Houk isn't ready to sign a long-term lease. New York's brave new world will have to mark time until Mickey Mantle can last more than 2½ innings.

"Too bad it isn't October," Manager Houk said Monday after his new-look Yankees had mauled Washington 8-0 in the American League's annual presidential opener to gain first place for the first time since Oct. 4, 1964.

The Los Angeles Dodgers ended the baseball season with a loss and begin the '67 campaign the same way LA suffered a 6-1 loss to Cincinnati.

New York's impressive getaway, a product of Mel Stottlemyre's brilliant two-hit pitching and a 14-hit attack, was marred by the loss of Mantle, whose debut as a first baseman was cut short when he aggravated a spring training injury during the Yankees' seven-run, third-inning explosion.

"We'll just have to wait and see how it comes around," Houk said. "We don't know how serious it is right now."

While Stottlemyre, a 20-game loser for the 10th-place Yanks last year, was throttling the Senators before a D.C. Stadium crowd of 44,382 that included President Johnson, the Cincinnati Reds got the jump in the National League with a 6-1 victory over Los Angeles' 1966 NL champs.

At Washington, the President added a new twist to pre-game ceremonies by tossing out the first ball — and then making two more pitches. Fred Valentine of the Senators caught the first delivery, and Yankee pitchers took it from there.

Al Downing and Dooley Womack grabbed the President's other two tosses before Stottlemyre stymied the Senators, yielding only an infield hit by Cap Peterson in the second inning and a ground single by Valentine in the ninth.

Tom Tresh touched off the Yankees' third-inning uprising with a double off loser Pete Richert and rookie Bill Robinson followed with the season's first homer.

Mantle singled, Pepitone tripled and Elston Howard singled for two more runs. Charlie Smith beat out an infield roller and John Kennedy, recently acquired from the Dodgers, lashed a two-run double before Stottlemyre capped the barrage with a run-scoring single.

Pinson and Johnson cracked first-inning homers for Cincinnati against right-hander Bob Miller, who has moved from the bullpen into Sandy Koufax' spot in the Dodgers pitching rotation. Simpson hit a pinch homer off reliever Ron Perranoski in the seventh before an appreciative turnout of 28,422 at Crosley Field.

Maloney, meanwhile, checked the Dodgers on five hits before complaining of tightness in his right shoulder. "It's nothing to be concerned about," he said later. "I usually experience this early in the season."

The other 16 major league clubs opened their pennant bids today, with Baltimore's world champion Orioles entertaining Minnesota and Pittsburgh's National League favorites visiting the Mets at New York.

In other American League openers, Chicago visited Boston this afternoon while Cleveland was at Kansas City and Detroit at California in night games.

Philadelphia was at Chicago, Atlanta at Houston and San Francisco at St. Louis in the National League, the latter two games going under the lights.

Hawks Fall

SAN FRANCISCO AP - Nate was great so the San Francisco Warriors head East today holding a 3-2 advantage over the St. Louis Hawks in their best-of-7 playoff for Western Division honors in the National Basketball Association.

Nate Thurmond, the 6-foot-11-inch Warrior pivotman, scored 23 points in San Francisco's 123-102 triumph at the Cow Palace Monday night. More important, he controlled the boards and grabbed 27 rebounds.

The two clubs meet Wednesday night at St. Louis Kiel Auditorium where San Francisco hasn't won this season and where the Hawks had squared the playoffs 2-2 with a pair of victories.

Tonight in Philadelphia, the 76ers will try to win the Eastern Division honors from the Boston Celtics. The 76ers need only one more triumph to take that playoff, leading 3-1 in the best-of-7 series.

A Philadelphia victory would end Boston's eight-year NBA reign.

The Warriors' Rick Barry, who suffered an ankle injury at St. Louis on Saturday night, returned to action with a 25-point performance as the Cow Palace game's leading scorer.

Quality Time Magic Words

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — "Quality time"—those were the magic words as coach Bob Timmons disclosed that his protege Jim Ryun, world mile record holder, will point for the Glenn Cunningham mile at the Kansas Relays April 22.

Ryun's army of followers know that quality time means something great is in the offing. The last time the little Kansas coach used those words was at the Texas Relays. The result was a world record 3:15.2 sprint medley relay with Ryun anchoring in 1:46.1 for the half mile.

The KU Relays one week from Ryun's 20th birthday will be the only chance of the entire Kansas outdoor season for Ryun to concentrate on a mile race. He plans to "rest" the week before the race, cutting his training down to only 30 or 40 miles.

"Jim will not run any race at the KU Relays prior to the Glenn Cunningham mile," Timmons said. "He will point for a quality time.

"This will be his only chance until after the NCAA championships in June. I think he certainly deserves it."

Ryun followed the same formula last year and the result was a 3:55.8, the fastest mile ever that early in the season. If the weather is good, that mark probably is doomed, but it's a little too much to expect Ryun to dip under his world mark of 3:51.3.

Timmons already has lined up four other sub-4-minute milers for the Glenn Cunningham mile, a major feat in view of the fact four of the world's top milers—Kipchoge Keino of Kenya, Bodo Tummler of West Germany and Jim Grelle and Dyrol Burleson of the United States—all have declined invitations. But Timmons has two more in his sights.

Keino's best of 3:53.4 is second only to Ryun in track history.

In the field with Ryun so far are ex-Texas star Richard Romo, with a career best of 3:58.8; Tom Day of the Los Angeles Striders, whose best of 3:56.4 won the U.S. Federation crown in 1965; Ted Nelson of the Striders, with a 3:59.4 last August; and Brigham Young freshman Tim Danielson, whose best was 3:59.4 at Chula Vista, Calif., in high school.

Romo was a key man in Ryun's 3:51.3 world mark at Berkeley Calif., last July 17. Romo led the first lap in 57.3, then he picked up the pace, forcing Ryun to run a 57.6—fastest second quarter in track history in a world class race. He pushed Ryun to a 1:55.5 half, even faster than his second half of 1:55.8.

Umbrella Proposed For Atlanta Stadium

ATLANTA AP -- A huge vinyl - plastic umbrella which could be raised in less than three hours to completely cover Atlanta Stadium would be a model for other structures throughout the country, the architects say.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. was presented the novel proposal Monday by architects George T. Heery and James H. Finch.

The architects say their solution for foul weather conditions at the stadium would give Atlanta the largest protected playing field in the world -- exceeding Houston's celebrated Astrodome in size and spectator capacity.

Atlanta Stadium has a maximum capacity of 57,100.

The architects said the air-supported plastic umbrella would involve only one - third the cost of permanent stadium roofs, and the beauty of the design would be its flexibility.

"We can have sunshine for our grass in fair weather and still provide complete protection for fans whenever the rains come," they said.

The mast then would be retracted into a missile-type silo and the covering would be supported by air from a series of blowers situated throughout the stadium.

Host in their second game of the season, the Sikeston Bulldogs will go against Coach Gene Bess's Oran Eagles in a 4 p.m. baseball game Wednesday. The Dogs and the Eagles have clashed once before this season with the Sikeston squad coming out on top 3-0.

The Eagle coaching staff feels pretty pessimistic about the game, but thinks that they will give the Dogs a better match than the last one. Sikeston will be seeing Tim Halter again on the mound tomorrow. He threw seven respectable innings in the last meeting.

Sikeston's Hale Lane, will probably be going with ace-righthander, Rudy Manley again. Manley is 4-0 for the season in the won - loss bracket. He is credited with every win.

Sikeston will go against Oran, which has a 3-1 record. The Eagles added their third victory Monday afternoon with a second victory from Kelly, 7-1. They have also beaten Chaffee and a loss to Sikeston earlier.

How would we start our conversation?

"Talk about the subject you know best—yourself. The broker wants you to feel completely at ease, and there's no better way than to make your own position clear right at the start. Tell him something about your financial situation, the amount you might invest after taking care of living expenses and the usual emergencies, and the investment goal you have in mind."

What if I don't know exactly what my goal should be?

"You wouldn't be the first. Many brokers feel that one of their most important services is to help the investor understand himself—how much risk he can afford and how an investment might help him get what he wants out of life."

Suppose I just want to make some money?

"That's what everybody wants, but there are different ways to approach it."

"Yes. Some people want a second income from dividends, so they examine a stock's dividend record and current yield. Others can invest their money and leave it in the market to grow. Others want to put their money in securities where they think the risk is relatively small—maybe bonds or high-grade preferred stocks. But picking exactly the right security is not as simple as pushing a button. There is risk in any investment, stocks or anything else."

When we've agreed on a goal, can I leave the rest up to the broker?

"It's your money and you'll want to have the final say in what you buy. Ask your broker for several stocks to consider. Ask him about a company's earnings and dividend record. Ask for his own opinion of a company's prospects. Discuss the risks. His job is to help you reason your way to a sensible decision."

What about the broker's firm? Why pick a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange?

"Member firms operate under a remarkable set of rules. Some deal with a firm's finances—having adequate capital, for example, and periodic audits of their books. And the brokers must be full-time brokers. Rules like these—and there are hundreds of them—are the result of the Exchange's experience over 175 years."

Francona Goes To Phillies

By By MIKE RECHT

Tony Taylor's career as a first baseman, a temporary thing anyway, has been cut in half even before Philadelphia opened its 1967 baseball season today.

The Phillies shortened Taylor's try at first by acquiring veteran first sacker Tito Francona from the St. Louis Cardinals for an undisclosed amount of cash Monday.

Taylor, normally a second baseman, had been the scheduled replacement for Bill White, whose injured foot is expected to sideline him for several months. Now, the right-handed Taylor will be platooned with the left-handed Francona.

Francona, 33, appeared in 83 games for the Cardinals last year, hit four home runs and drove in 17 runs while hitting .212. Philadelphia will be his sixth stop after tours with Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Baltimore in the American League and the Cardinals in his 10-year major league career.

To make room for him, the Phillies sent pitcher Bill Wilson outright to their San Diego farm club.

Another veteran got a new lease on his career as California offered Jim Piersall a contract after he trained without one this spring.

Piersall, 37, who has been in the major leagues since 1953 and with the Angels the last three years, hit .211 in 75 games last season.

The Angels also grabbed catcher Orlando McFarlane from Detroit on waivers and sent right-handed Fred Newman, southpaw Clyde Wright and catcher Merritt Ranew to Seattle. Shortstop Jack Hernandez was sent to Minnesota's Denver farm club, completing the trade that brought Jim Hall, Don Mincher and Pete Cimino to the Angels for Dean Chance.

The Chicago Cubs placed veteran infielder Felix Mantilla on the 21-day disabled list with a pulled tendon and added rookie pitcher Joe Nelkro and veteran catcher Dick Bertell to the roster.

Baltimore and Cleveland reached the 28-player limit as the Orioles optioned catcher Vic Roznovsky and pitcher Dave Leonhard to Rochester and the Indians returned rookie pitcher Billy Wynne to Jacksonville.

Houston optioned pitcher Danny Coombs to Asheville, N.C., returned catcher Doc Edwards to Oklahoma City and placed outfielder Alonzo Harris, 19, on the roster. The Astros decided not to activate coach Bob Lillis, a veteran infielder.

GI's Anniversary Gift Surprises Wife

"To my darling wife Marcia - happy first anniversary from South Vietnam.

"All my love, your husband, Al. See you in June."

Marcia wept. "I was more than surprised. It was the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me," she said.

Her husband, Spec. 4 Alvin Baake Jr., 21, wrote to the newspaper from Vietnam asking about the cost of a full-page advertisement.

The newspaper decided to donate the page.

Fearless Clerk Foils Holdup

PITTSBURGH, PA. (AP) - Two men walked into a small neighborhood grocery store in Pittsburgh's Beltzhoover section and approached Margaret Kubisiak, 81, alone behind the counter.

"Do you wish to be waited on?" asked Mrs. Kubisiak.

One man pulled out a pistol.

"No," he said, "I want money."

"No," replied Mrs. Kubisiak.

"I'm not fooling," he said.

"Neither am I."

"I've got a gun."

"So do I," she said, and pointed a tear-gas pellet gun at the man.

He and his companion left.

"I don't care for that type," said Mrs. Kubisiak later.

Penny Arcade Sign Comes Down at Coney

NEW YORK (AP) - The Penny Arcade sign over Coney Island's slot machine row has been replaced by one reading:

"Get your dimes and nickels here."

The last two penny-slot machines went out with the sign Sunday. Dime games were installed where a copper could once win you a whistle, badge or a box of popcorn.

Of the 83 machines in the arcade, 62 now take nickels and 21 take dimes.

A FEW INSTINCTIVE PRECAUTIONS CAN KEEP THIEVES FROM YOUR CAR

Would you encourage someone to steal your car?

"Heavens, no!" might be the startled response from any typical motorist. Yet how often drivers leave their automobiles easy prey to anyone with the slighest inclination of slipping furtively behind the wheel and pulling away. There's the car left unlocked in the supermarket lot, the one parked and running while the owner does a quick errand across the street, the family wagon -- loaded to the roof with luggage -- spending the night on a dark, deserted street. And how often car thieves take advantage of such ideal opportunities.

True, the professional thief can open a car and drive if off even if it is locked tight with the ignition key nowhere about. But the non-professional usually can't, and more than half the car thefts in the country are accomplished by amateurs. Many of them are teenagers "borrowing" the cars for freewheeling joyrides.

Even a professional, though, hesitates to break into a locked car -- in broad daylight, at least -- because of the attention his efforts can attract. At night, it's different. Under cover of darkness, thieves can often do their work totally unnoticed. That's why, at night, it is wise to go out of your way to park on well-lighted, busy streets -- near stores and restaurants, for example, where their is plenty of pedestrian and automobile traffic. Better yet, use an attended garage or parking lot.

In cooperation with the National Auto Theft Prevention Campaign coordinated by the U. S. Department of Justice, the American Oil Company advocates these practices for protecting your car -- day or night:

1. When you park (unless you're using an attended garage or lot), lock the ignition, close all the windows, lock all the doors, and take your keys with you -- even if you're going to be gone only a few minutes.

2. Keep clothes, cameras, luggage, and other valuables you're carrying, out of sight of bypassers. "Never transfer belongings into the trunk after you park," American Oil Advises. "A potential thief could be watching, and a glimpse of your 'goods' might be just the enticement he needs. Transfer them first, then park the car in another place."

3. When you leave your car, take along all credit cards, charge account identification, and other credentials a car thief could misuse at your expense.

4. Be prepared to help the police recover your car or accessories more quickly if they should be stolen. Record this information in your billfold or pocket secretary; year and make of car; state and city license numbers; vehicle identification number; engine number; number of keys, door, and trunk, make and numbers of the car radio and all the tires.

5. As an extreme precaution -- if, for example, you live or work in an area where cars have been more susceptible to theft -- purchase an auto alarm. Alarms are available from locksmiths, auto-supply stores, garages, and some department stores. One common type is easily hooked up from the battery, with a switch you can turn on as you leave the car. When the alarm is on, anyone tampering with the ignition is quickly routed by a strident wail.

VOTE TO CONSOLIDATE MISSOURI UTILITIES FACILITIES with the BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

QUESTIONS CONCERNING THE BOND ISSUE.

Q. Does the Board of Public Works set the City Utility rates?
A. No. The Board of Public Works reports to the City Council on matters pertaining to rates. The City Council has the final decision on rate changes.

Q. What will prevent the Board of Public Works from raising rates if they have no competition?
A. The Board of Public Works was established in the beginning for the purpose of supplying electricity to Sikeston citizens at the lowest rates possible. All earnings by the City Utility operations go back into the operation as improvements, rate reductions or applied in some way that will benefit Sikeston citizens.

The City Council has final say-so on rates.

"Yardstick" competition will be present from other utility companies located in adjacent communities to compare rates with.

Q. If the Bond referendum is successful, will there be a rate increase?
A. NO. The members of the Board of Public Works pledged that rates will not be increased because of the action to consolidate facilities.

Q. Will rates decrease?
A. Customers being served by Missouri Utilities Company will get an immediate decrease in rates.

With added revenues to the City's operation, a strong possibility exists that a general rate reduction will be made.

Q. How will the Bond Issue be paid for?
A. The Bonds will be REVENUE BONDS and will be paid for from earnings of the electric department.

Q. Will it be necessary for the City to increase their tax rate?
A. NO. The City Utility operations contribute annually, as donated services, to the City some $60,000.00, which contributes to the present low tax rate. Mr. Raymert Miller has stated that: "Loss of tax moneys from Missouri Utilities operation in Sikeston will be more than compensated for with additional donated services and payment in lieu of taxes. It will not be necessary to increase the General Revenue Tax rate."

Q. Does the City have sufficient power available to supply the entire City?
A. Yes. Our interconnection with the Southwest Power Administration's system will provide the power needed to operate our system.

Q. Will this decrease the number of poles and equipment in any areas?
A. YES. Where facilities are duplicated and serving the same area and customers, one service will be removed.

ELECTION LAWS MAY FINALLY BE REVISED

If a poll watcher or judge of an election in Missouri or a county clerk were to be asked a question concerning an election law, qualifications of candidates, hours polls are open, absentee ballots or other election matters, he might refer to the Revised Statutues of Missouri -- but few people would be surprised if he did not give up within a few minutes.

The state of present election laws has been described as "appalling" and "very confusing."

This session of the Legislature, although adding to the problems by introducing another 41 bills concerning changes in election procedures, may be the first to tackle the major problem of revising all current election laws and bringing them up to date.

Similar bills in the House and Senate provide for the establishment of an election law study commission which would include the Secretary of State, members of both houses, election commissioners and county clerks.

The commission would probably first have to turn to the Legislative Research department of the General Assembly which would codify all existing election laws.

This would be no small chore, as laws have been piling up since 1821 concerning election procedures -- and many of them already are in conflict with each other.

Finally, the commission would be charged with studying modern election procedures and recommending new legislation which might be adopted in the next session of the General Assembly.

Both the House and Senate bills have received committee approval and only await floor action before a commission would be appointed.

There appears to be little opposition to the bills -- few legislators deny there are many problems inherent in current election practices -- but the revision of the state's election laws certainly is not taking the Capitol by storm.

The problem may be more serious than envisioned. As Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick has pointed out, elections are the basis of our constitutional system, and each citizen must be guaranteed that his vote will count and that fraudulent election practices do not exist.

Kirkpatrick provided the impetus behind the election study commission when he appointed University of Missouri professor Robert Karsch to present a list of recommended election law changes to the Legislature. This has been done, but few of his proposals appear in the form of bills in the present session of the Legislature.

Other approaches have been proposed in this session -- such as campaign and election practices commission bill introduced by Sen. Richard Southern (D-Monroe City), but which appears to have little chance of passage since the function of such a commission -- given the power to investigate charges of election fraud and illegal practices and set up its own code of election standards -- appears to overlap with the operation of the election boards in St. Louis city and county.

In addition, the Senate elections committee in a hearing last week indicated they felt such a commission would hold the powers of legislator, prosecutor and judge of election practices -- somewhat bypassing the function of the Legislature.

As a result, a commission which would merely study current election problems and make recommended changes to the Legislature -- and at the same time recommending the abolishment of all outdated election laws now on the books -- seems to be the most acceptable approach to legislators.

HOUSE APPROVES PAROCHIAL SCHOOL BUS MEASURE

Few issues have raised public attention and such a wide number of state supreme court cases in the past decade as that of providing public transportation to children attending private and parochial schools.

Debated in several previous sessions in the Missouri General Assembly, Missouri citizens may finally have an opportunity to vote on the question in a proposed amendment to the Missouri constitution.

A bill authorizing such a referendum was given tentative approval in the Missouri House of Representatives last week, and is expected to be given final passage and sent to the Senate.

If approved by both houses, Missouri citizens could vote on the proposal in the 1968 general election, or at a special election designated by the governor.

During the floor debate of the measure, Rep. James Spainhower (D - Marshall), chairman of the House Education Committee, voiced his opposition to the bill and its precepts -- stating that he believed it violated the constitutional separation of church and state.

Spainhower was the sponsor this session of another controversial educational bill -- the so-called "shared time" bill -- which was recently passed by the House and would allow handicapped and educationally deprived children from private and parochial schools to attend special classes in public schools.

He drew a distinction between the shared time proposal and the "school bus bill" stating there was no connection between the two, and that he felt state funds used to carry private and parochial pupils to schools would amount to a subsidization of such institutions, and cause discontent among the state's citizens.

Rep. Charles A. Sheehan (D-House Springs), sponsor of the bill, said on the floor, "It is fallacious to say this bill would cause discord." He cited a recent decision by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in which that body's chief justice stated he saw no relation between parochial school bus bills and the support of the religions, as the bus bill only promotes the welfare and safety of all children, regardless of what schools they attend.

We walk together.

63 million of us. . . 63 million people who regularly put money aside for unexpected hospital expenses.

And when the need comes, the money is there.

Private Enterprise And Public Responsibility In A Free Economy

Admittedly, the two cases I have cited represent specific and limited opportunities. But think of the immense impact if businesses all across the country focused on one or two public - service projects where they could contribute specialized knowledge. For instance, the "brain teams" that have figured out how to put a man on the moon should certainly be able to get a man to work a little more quickly and conveniently. This was underscored in the recent California experiment in which four aerospace companies, using systems analysis, drew up provocative long - range programs for coping with the state's problems of transportation, crime, pollution, and data communication. We in the business community have here an unusual chance to strengthen our free - opportunity system by demonstrating that our know-how can be brought to bear, quickly and effectively, on social and economic problems.

A second factor that business should take into account in designating areas for creative competition with government is selectivity. It should select those areas where there is a particular tendency today to look to government for help.

Industrial relations are a case in point. Some unions apparently are beginning to feel they are not big boys unless they can embroil the Mayor or the Secretary of Labor or even the President himself in their wage disputes. Yet labor relations experts are virtually unanimous in their agreement that too much government intervention stifles initiative and robs the collective bargaining process of its flexibility and self - government.

How much better it would be for labor and management to compete with government in this area by showing genuine originality in working out their own solutions. A few far - sighted companies and unions are trying to do just that through Joint Study Committees and the results to date are heartening. These committees work year-round on explosive issues that cannot be handled in the countdown atmosphere of a strike deadline, but can be talked out in a more leisurely forum. In many cases, the upshot has been a solution measuring up to the highest standards of both public responsibility and private freedom.

Management, by itself or in collaboration with unions, could also compete with government in the retaining of workers displaced through automation. True, a handful of companies have made a start in this direction, but much more could and should be done without looking to government for guidance and handouts. After all, unions and management have a common share in the nation's affluence, and a common stake in the progress of a country that gives the worker a better life than he has ever known since the wheels of the industrial revolution first began to turn.

Another area where Federal influence is becoming increasingly evident and where business could do more is education. It came as a shock to me the other day to learn that the Ivy League colleges, usually regarded as among the last private bastions of the liberal arts, now depend on the Federal Government for well over one - third of their total budgets.

To the Editor
The Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

Why do we fight Communists in Vietnam and help them everywhere else? This question about our contradictory foreign policy seems unanswerable.

Do we realize that we are at war? The President has said 'this is war'. It is, in fact, the third largest war in American history. Our enemy is the total communist bloc of nations, although we have declared war on no nation. Eighty percent of the North Vietnamese war effort is supplied by Soviet Russia and the Satellites. The North Vietnam war machine runs almost entirely on Russian oil. The greatest concentration of anti - aircraft weapons for the defense of a city has been provided by the Soviet Union. Russia recently shipped 100 new Mig fighters to Hanoi.

Late in 1966, in a speech, the President said: -- "We will reduce export controls on East-West trade with respect to hundreds of non - strategic items." The New York Times reported Oct. 13th: -- "Among the categories from which items have been selected for export relaxation are -- metal ores and scrap -- petroleum -- chemical compounds -- metal products and machinery -- scientific instruments --"; and on October 27th : -- "The Soviet Union and its allies agreed to grant North Vietnam assistance, in material and money, to about one billion dollars. Poland's contribution will be 30 million, it is said--"

Every American pilot and plane lost over North Vietnam can be credited to Moscow; yet every effort is made, by us, to strengthen this dictatorship, in the name of 'building-bridges of understanding and the relieving of cold - war tensions.'

Yours truly

While in Sasebo, the crew of the Hancock used their rest and recreation time hard at work. They did not tend boilers, launch planes or do any of their normal shipboard tasks, but spent their time repairing the World Missions Orphanage in Sasebo.

After completing the work on the orphanage, the crewmembers gave a party for the orphans and presented a painting of nearly 900 - foot long carrier to hang in one of the orphange's halls renamed for the Hancock.

WHO ELSE BUT POTEET CANYON COULD FIND TROUBLE COVERING THE 50th ANNIVERSARY OF KELLY A.F. BASE?

Poteet Canyon, who could wheedle a smile out of a cigar store Indian, persuades Iron Myke, her city editor, to let her cover the 50th anniversary of Kelly Air Force Base, in San Antonio, Texas, and the Strawberry Festival at Poteet, Texas -- the town for which she was named.

But Myke insists that Poteet must pay her own way, so she makes a deal with Bitsy Beekman, a girl pilot - photographer -- and the two are off to San Antonio in Bitsy's plane.

Poteet and Bitsy are warmly received at Kelly A.F.B., named for Lt. George Kelly, the first pilot killed while flying a military aircraft. But when she returns to the High City Herald, Poteet finds two government agents waiting.

It seems that a shipment of heroin was flown out of Texas in a light plane, the registration numbers of which match Bitsy's Bug. And Bitsy and her plane have both vanished from the High City Airport.

Has Bitsy involved Poteet in a narcotics smuggling ring? Or is Bitsy herself the innocent victim of a plot by others?

Don't miss this dramatic story -- and Poteet's solution of their dilemma in

"Dead As Dormouse"

The term "dead as a dormouse" stems from the fact that the dormouse, small rodent which inhabits the colder climates, hibernates in its winter nest and often sleeps as long as six months at a time, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE DEPRIVED BOXER

Barney agreed to fight a 10-rounder with Muscles McGirk under a contract that provided for strict compliance with the rules of the State Athletic Commission. One rule, in particular, provided for no hitting below the belt.

In the second round, Barney unleashed a devastating uppercut that started from the floor and landed south of Muscle McGirk's border. The result? McGirk was completely disabled and the fight was halted. And so was payment on Barney's purse.

"You forfeited it," the fight promoter told him. "You breached your contract by violating the State Athletic rule against hitting below the belt."

"That's ridiculous," was Barney's answer. "I didn't hit McGirk below the belt on purpose. I was aiming for his chin. Because the punch was a little off course is no reason to hold back my purse."

Intent upon collecting it, Barney put on the gloves with the promoter in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you give Barney the decision?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order to collect under a contract, a sizeable portion of the contract must be carried out. And, in this case, there was not a substantial performance since, due to Barney's foul, the 10-round fight lasted for only two rounds. What's more, the judge concluded, whether or not the foul was deliberate made no difference. It was an act which Barney had contracted not to do.

(Based upon a 1916 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Readers: In all the years I have been writing this column I have never received such a barrage of vitriolic, abusive and downright nasty letters as was provoked by my plea for tighter gun laws. I printed some of the less venomous letters yesterday and promised that today I would print the best letter in support of my position. I am happy to say it was written by a teenager. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old boy who agrees emphatically with your stand on the easy availability of guns.

You asked you readers to write to their senators and congressmen urging them to pass some decent gun laws. If you know anything about human nature, Ann Landers, you know that very few people will take the time and trouble to do it. They may agree with you but that's as far as they will go. I have a suggestion which I hope you will consider worthy.

Why don't YOU write a letter and print it in the paper and ask your readers to tear it out and mail it to their senator or congressman in Washington? This is to let them know we want a federal law prohibiting the shipment of guns across state lines. Instruct your readers to write the following message across the column: "Please read this column and then forward it to the Speaker of The House in Our State Legislature." This is to let HIM know we also want state laws strictly controlling sale and registration of all kinds of guns.

If several thousand columns hit the desks of our legislators (both national and state), we will surely get the kind of action we need to make this country a safer and saner place to live. Thank you. --- R.S.F. OF CHICAGO

Dear Chicago Teen: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. Below is the letter which I hope will be torn out of thousands of newspapers and sent to the senators and congressmen in Washington. If you don't know the name of your senator or congressman, call your newspaper and don't forget to follow the boy's suggestion and jot down a request that he forward the column to the speaker of your state legislature.

Dear Lawmaker: Do you want to buy a gun? Well, go right ahead. Nobody will ask you how old you are, if you are a mental defective, if you have a criminal record, or if you know how to use firearms properly. If you can pay for a gun you can have one --- a rifle, a bazooka, a pistol, an anti-tank blaster, any kind of gun your little heart desires.

If you can't get to a gun store or a pawn shop, fill out a coupon and get a gun through the mail. Lee Oswald did it and nothing has changed since then. You can do it, too.

If all this sounds unsettling, let me assure you it is. I am writing to you because you and you alone can put an end to this appalling situation. We need a federal law to prohibit the shipment of guns across state lines. We need state laws that make it mandatory for every gun owner to be registered.

According to the Gallup Poll taken in January for NBC, approximately 75% of the American people want tougher gun laws. We have no paid lobbyists, no organization to espouse our cause, no one to speak for us, so we must speak for ourselves. We ask your help, Mr. Lawmaker, in the name of the 17,000 Americans who died last year from gunshot wounds. --- SINCERELY,

A U.S. government source said there would be agreement on a tentative declaration, but it was obvious the foreign ministers would have to leave over some thorny matters for the consideration of their chiefs.

One of these was the general question of trade and credits.

Another was the preamble to the declaration. There has been no agreement on this after many hours of discussion among the foreign ministers. The United States wanted mention of political considerations, such as resistance to communism and devotion to democratic processes, but met with stiff resistance.

The big snags were in the area of economics, which is what this meeting is all about. The summit conference is billed as an attempt to accelerate the Alliance for Progress and set in motion the formation of a common market for Latin America.

The U.S. government source said Washington would be pleased if it could untie U.S. aid dollars and permit the Latin-American nations to spend them in markets other than the United States. He described the desire of some nations to do this as an urgent one.

But he pointed out that the U.S. government must take into consideration its problem of an unfavorable balance of payments. Undoubtedly, the issue will be discussed by the chiefs of state at their meetings which begin Wednesday.

Once again the foreign ministers labored into the morning in an attempt to accommodate conflicting views. They are expected to repeat the performance tonight after a busy day welcoming their heads of state to this heavily guarded resort town.

By Wednesday there should be a tentative declaration for the presidents to consider. The presidents may change the text, but the positions of many governments represented here are fairly well fixed, and agreement on the major points of conflict seemed unlikely.

The Latin Americans hoped Johnson would bring a major concession of some kind, either on the issue of the loan and credit dollars now restricted to purchases of U.S. products or some sort of preferential treatment for Latin-American goods in the U.S. market.

U.S. representatives countered demands for Latin access to U.S. markets with the statement that only Johnson had power to do anything. They cited the balance of payments situation when the talk turned to removal of restrictions on the spending of aid funds.

The conference meetings continue Thursday and the final session will be held Friday morning.

Meanwhile, a Communist youth march continued along the road from Montevideo to Punta del Este to "repudiate" the summit conference in general and President Johnson in particular. By Monday night the marchers had covered about 50 of the 70 miles, but half of the original 200 had dropped out.

"I'm thrilled. I never thought about winning but I'm glad I did," she said. Film work in New York kept her from the ceremonies.

A high point came when Patricia Neal, in a long purple and yellow gown, limped onstage to make her first appearance since three strokes nearly killed her in 1965.

Given a standing ovation, she said: "It really is wonderful, wonderful, to be back with you."

An ABC television crew rehearsed the show with participants through the weekend in hopes a strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists would be settled.

Hope, introduced as "America's comic conscience" to preside at Oscar ceremonies for the 13th time, explained:

"The strike took a long time to settle. There was nobody at the networks to talk to — they were all doing newscasts."

devices could not be openly advertised.

One opponent said it would be ridiculous to ban such advertising. Young People would get the information in an underground fashion anyway and "that sort of information is very often erroneous."

As the debate went on the galleries were well-filled with delegates to the annual "sophomore pilgrimage" of high school students.

Monday, the House passed a bill to let unemployed fathers live at home and still allow their families to receive aid to dependent children.

It would require the father to be actively seeking employment.

The bill was recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Sponsors said it would prevent the breakup of families and stop the practice of fathers hiding out so their families could continue to get ADC payments.

Monday night a Senate committee recommended a bill to prevent wiretapping by anyone, including law enforcement officers. The minimum penalty would be 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Any person who used an electronic device to record a conversation between others for the purpose of harming them could be prosecuted.

A House committee heard a bill that would require all public schools in the state to be in a high school district but no immediate action was taken. Only about 300 of the 800 school districts in the state are in high school districts now.

Any district not part of a high school district by Jan. 1, 1972, would be deprived of state aid.

The committee also heard a bill authorizing a district to levy a special tax to transport students to and from state colleges and junior colleges—a program already in effect in Mexico, Mo.

Earlier the House crippled a bill to ban the importation of strikebreakers. When the penalty clause was removed, sponsors shelved it.

The Senate advanced a long sought bill to let voters decide whether to have a cheaper alternative form of county government.

They could vote to have an elected supervisor or a commissioner, appointed by the county court and several county offices would be consolidated or abolished.

Two years ago a similar bill passed the Senate but was killed in a House committee.

Tenn., merchandise manager for the Quality Stamp Co., testified first. Sutton said that Waldman ordered two color television sets from the Quality Stamp Co. in November, 1966, to be sent to Harold Bruce, a Caruthersville grocer.

Sutton testified that Waldman said the televisions were to be used in a promotion at grocery stores owned by Bruce.

Waldman picked up the sets when they arrived at the Quality Stamp redemption center in Sikeston, Sutton said. Payment was never received for the sets, he said. The invoice was sent to Bruce.

The sets were taken from Waldman's house March 1, by Deputy Sheriff Eddie Michael after a search warrant was obtained, Potashnick said.

Sutton was asked by the defendant's lawyer if he ever billed Waldman for the television sets. Sutton said he did not.

Sutton was then asked if Waldman had requested billing for the televisions, and Sutton said Waldman had asked to be billed in January.

Harold Bruce testified that he never requested Waldman to order two color television sets for any promotion, and that he never received the television sets.

Mrs. Lova Dickson, manager of the Qualify Stamp redemption center in Sikeston, testified that the television sets were received by the store, but she did not know who picked them up.

Women's Medical News Service

Women's Medical News Service

A study of 1,300 women taking oral contraceptives - some of whom have been on the pill for as long as 11 years - has revealed no serious ill effects among the entire group.

This significant news was reported recently by a team of three scientists headed by Gregory Pincus, D. Sc., Research Director of the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, Shrewsbury, Mass. Dr. Pincus is one of the developers of the pill. His co-investigators were Hector Rocamora, M.D., senior scientist at the Foundation; and Celso-Ramon Garcia, M.D., Chief of the Fertility and Endocrine Clinic of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

Noting that the "follow-up of these oral contraceptive users probably represents the most sizeable, longest-term oral contraceptive patient pools anywhere in the world," the report shows the following:

Not a single case of thrombophlebitis with pulmonary embolism (blood clot) developed in the entire period. According to medical experts at least one non-pregnant woman in a thousand in the childbearing years can be expected to develop this circulatory problem. Not one of the 1,300 women on the pill has developed the condition.

Not a single breast cancer developed in the long-term users, according to Dr. Pincus. Not a single uterine cancer traceable to the pill developed in all that time. The report shows that of the five cases of such cancer found among the women, all had originated before the women had begun using the pill.

A total of 16 unplanned pregnancies occurred over the whole period of time, and 15 of these were due to "improper adherence to the regimen." All but one of the infants were normal. This baby was born blind, to a mother who had had German measles during the first three months of pregnancy.

There was not a single case of heart or circulatory disease, or of jaundice, among the pill users.

Over the 11-year period, five women in the study died, four of causes unrelated to the pill. The exact cause of death of the fifth woman had not been determined when the report was made.

Some of the women reported minor side effects, which were more frequent in the early months of treatment and disappeared with continued use of the pill. Most common complaints were nausea, vomiting, loss of appetite, bloating and some weight gain.

FURTHER REASSURANCE

Asked to comment on the report, which was made at the meeting here of the American Association of Planned Parenthood Physicians, Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, President of Planned Parenthood/World Population, told Women's Medical News Service:

"These reassuring observations are most welcome. They are in keeping with recent reports released by the World Health Organization, the Food and Drug Administration, and England's Dunlop Committee.

"The fact that Dr. Pincus and his associates kept a sample of 1,300 pill users under close observation over many years and noted no pathological sequelae makes the report a significant contribution.

"For the physician who recognizes the unique value of the pill in the prevention of unplanned conceptions, it is heartening to read the increasing number of reports accumulating in the literature attesting its short and long term safety."

Seventy-two percent (or 194,000) of the 300,000 women who came to Planned Parenthood centers for family planning are on the pill. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 American women use the oral contraceptive and that 11,000,000 women world-wide do so.

BOOK OF THE AGES

The Bible is the one book of the ages -- of all ages and all climes. Man's present unbelief seeks to loosen its authority, to dilute its statements, to render indefinite its doctrines. But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. God is not man that He should lie. His Word is sure, His truth is everlasting, His Book is like the sun in the firmament; a light for all ages and lands.

Fred Schwent has worked with Southwestern Bell for 40 years

He's seen a lot of changes in telephone service

"And those changes have been for the better," says Mr. Schwent, deskman at Flat River, Missouri.

"When I started to work we had a bunch of rusty iron wire strung between white cedar poles," he recalls. "Every time we'd get a good wind storm there'd be maybe 200 cases of trouble. Now we've got cable—a lot of it underground—and big microwave towers. Storms don't give us much trouble at all. In fact, I'd say service has improved 100 per cent.

"Our new dial equipment has speeded calls quite a bit. And transmission quality is so much improved it's hard to believe."

What about the changes coming in the next 40 years?

"Nothing is impossible in this business," Schwent maintains. "Used to be our best service was a four-party line with battery-operated phones. Now they're testing Picturephone. I wouldn't be surprised at whatever comes along."

Whatever comes along will come because of people like Fred Schwent. He and more than 14,000 other Southwestern Bell people in Missouri-Illinois have one thing in common. They're working to make your telephone service better than ever.

Johnson Arrives in Uruguay for Hemispheric Summit Conference

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — President Johnson arrived today for a milestone summit conference and pledged the United States to support the cause of the Latin American people "which does not admit of the slightest delay." But he faced serious snags in the negotiations on Latin America's economic future.

The President, setting foot on South American soil for the first time brought a plea that the pace of the Alliance for Progress be quickened.

This was the business before foreign ministers of 19 nations who have been meeting here for long, wearing hours in advance of Wednesday's first formal summit session.

But, as a U.S. government source put it, the United States is faced here with a choice between "desirable policy and harsh necessity." This referred to Latin American pleas for unrestricted use of U. S. loan dollars to buy anywhere in the world market. It involves the critical problem of an unfavorable U.S. balance of payments.

The President, smiling and looking relaxed, waved to welcomers as he stepped from the helicopter that brought him to this sun-splashed rich man's resort from Montevideo.

The President made his formal arrival remarks during welcoming ceremonies in Montevideo, Uruguay's capital, delivering in Spanish the statement about the cause of the people that admits no delay.

Four helicopters escorted his craft into nearby Punta del Este, three of them with state and security men and one with security men. A Uruguayan fighter plane flew cover, adding to the U.S. security men's nervousness since apparently they had not been briefed on its appearance.

Security was extraordinarily tight in a zone of three square miles around Beaulieu, the villa assigned to President Johnson. Not a single disturbing incident has taken place here despite Communist agitation.

Swarms of police and troops surrounded the security zone of three square miles in the villa area. All access in and out of Punta del Este was heavily guarded. Antiaircraft guns were in strategic positions. Destroyer escorts and a communications ship prowled the water just off the coast of the Punta del Este Peninsula.

The official reception for the U.S. President — the bands, the color guards, the salute and the whole gamut of state visit ceremony — was restricted to Montevideo.

In Punta del Este, the arrival was all business with presidential aides and Secretary of State Rusk waiting to greet him.

Because of Communist agitation, extreme security measures kept visitors away from the Montevideo airport and only reporters and officials were present when Johnson arrived.

Johnson was welcomed to Uruguay by President Oscar Gestido. He pumped Johnson's hand and in a short speech told him his visit "fills us with joy for you are the respresentative of an eminent people."

Johnson landed in brilliant sunlight and the temperature was 86 degrees, unusually high for autumn in this part of the hemisphere.

Johnson, garbed in a dark blue suit and blue necktie, was the first to emerge from the helicopter. He waved amiably to the waiting welcomers.

Three of the accompanying helicopters also carried members of the President's staff. The fourth of the escort was all security, who were reported nervous about the Uruguayan fighter plane flying cover. It was reported that the security men had not been briefed on this.

Security has been so extraordinarily tight however, that despite Communist threats to stage some sort of uproar, not a single Communist had yet appeared on the scene.

Court Rules Draft Card Burning Act Of Free Speech

BOSTON AP -- Draft card burning is "a demonstration of free speech," the 1st U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled, and it said the amendment to the Selective Service law prohibiting it is unconstitutional.

The ruling Monday was in the case of David Paul O'Brien, 21, of Framingham, who was sentenced to six years in prison after publicly burning his draft card.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich upheld the conviction, however, because O'Brien had violated another section of the law by not having the card in his possession.

Aldrich sent the case back to U. S. District Court with instructions to vacate the six-year sentence and impose a new one. He said he feared the original term had been imposed because of public burning.

Helpful 4-Year-Old Gets Rid of Dad's Car

QUENIBOROUGH, England AP - Four-year-old Bruce Rambaldini heard his father tell his mother they ought to get rid of the family car. So Bruce set it on fire and burned it out.

John Rambaldini, a mechanic, was talking at breakfast Monday about selling his 1958 sedan and buying a new car. The words that stuck in Bruce's mind were: "We ought to get rid of the car."

Later in the morning, Bruce got a box of matches. He kept striking them and throwing them into the car until it was ablaze.

Said the child's mother: "The first I knew about it was when he came back into the kitchen and told me: I've done what daddy wanted'.

"I looked out and saw the car blazing. It was too late to do anything.

"Perhaps I should smack Bruce for this but I just can't do it. He is an obedient little boy and he honestly thought he was helping his dad."

'Man of All Seasons' Top Film Winner

California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy — ex-movie stars themselves — applauded the presentations from eighth row center and guffawed as master of ceremonies Bob Hope quipped:

"Tonight we salute Hollywood, the birthplace of politicians. Soon we'll need another category — best performance by a governor."

"A Man for All Seasons," the struggle of Sir Thomas More against King Henry VIII's scheming lieutenants, was acclaimed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as Best Picture of 1966.

It won Oscars also for Paul Scofield, in the title role; its director, Fred Zinnemann; and for color cinematography, costume design and screenplay.

Scofield, 45, was in England rehearsing a play. His Oscar was accepted by Wendy Hiller, nominated for her supporting role in "A Man for All Seasons."

"Virginia Woolf," the profanity-studded clash of a couple whose hate is grounded in love, brought a second Oscar to Elizabeth Taylor, 35, who won in 1960 for "Butterfield 8."

"Woolf" was acclaimed also for black and white cinematography, costume design and art direction.

Sandy Dennis, the young college professor's wife in "Woolf," received the supporting-actress award.

Stepping onstage with his broken left arm in a cast and his face bruised -injuries received in falling off a motorcycle last Saturday — he said:

"The other day as I was falling off my bicycle, I had the following thoughts: I was given a juicy part, allowed to work with talented, exhilarating, beautiful people and received a great deal of money. Really" — glancing at his Oscar — "don't you think this is going too far?"

Richard Burton and Miss Taylor were at work on "The Comedians" in France. By telephone, she said she was glad to have won but sorry that her nominee husband hadn't.

Miss Dennis, 23, a Nebraskan born in Hastings and reared in Lincoln, received the news of her victory while dining in a New York restaurant with her husband, jazz saxophonist Gerry Mulligan.

Execution Stay Angers Man Condemned to Die

REIDSVILLE, Ga. AP - A convicted rapist, only 45 minutes away from death in Georgia's electric chair, has described his 60 day reprieve as a "great injustice."

William Patrick Clark was scheduled to die at 10:45 a.m. Monday. At 10 a.m. Gov. Lester Maddox stayed the execution to allow a sanity commission to examine him.

Clark, 29, convicted of raping a 19-year-old DeKalb County girl on her way home from church last year, had said he was ready to die. He expressed anger at the stay.

"He must be nuts," Maddox said in staying the execution.

Birth Control Favored

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today advanced a bill to allow public dissemination of birth control information and killed another to open all barber and beauty shops to anyone regardless of race, creed or color.

The barber and beauty shop bill died on a 76-83 vote. Only one member voiced opposition.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, said the proposal goes beyond the federal public accommodations act. Now only those barber and beauty shops located in motels and hotels must accept all customers.

The birth control bill was moved forward on a voice vote. It would, in effect, let the state welfare and health divisions disseminate birth control information, particularly to those persons on welfare.

It would also allow the open sale of birth control devices or drugs.

Rep. Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, lost in his effort to change the bill so birth control

Town Proud of Being Backward

RADEC, Calif. AP -- The people of Radec are proud-because their town is backward. The backwardest place there is, they call it.

So backward, in fact, that townspeople even spell its name that way.

But the 10 families have a beef with the highway department--there are no road signs to let motorists know they have been in town.

"Radec isn't much," says David Welch, a town father of this village 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles. "No sidewalks. No street lights. At night the place is so dark those going through don't even know what they've missed."

Welch has strung six signs around his house. All read "Radec."

The village got its post office years ago, and the townspeople had to decide on a name. They wanted "Cedar."

"Up until we got the post office," says Vivian McGaugh, "we were nameless. When someone would ask where do you live, we would always say 15 miles up the road from Temecula."

There already was a Cedar, Calif.

"We couldn't think of anything else, so we spelled Cedar backwards and we've been Radec ever since," Mrs. A. E. Bergman said.

Irene Welch, proprietor of the town's only general store, was asked by a visitor to point out some of the outstanding features of Radec, nestled in the Aguba Tibia mountains.

"You got me stumped," she replied. "I can't think of a thing."

Clinton Davidson has asked the state for "City Limit" signs so people will know "They've been to the most backward place in the nation."

City to Open Battle on Mosquitoes

The city will begin spraying for mosquitoes in neighborhoods in the southwest part of town beginning at sundown today, City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

The spraying crew will try to cover the west section of town tonight. It will work until 1 a.m. or 2 a.m.

Tomorrow night the crew will begin spraying the east section of town.

The spraying will continue throughout the week.

Koch to Be Club Pilot

Fred Koch, manager of Reliable Life Insurance Company, was elected president of the Rotary club last night at a meeting in the Rustic Rock Inn. He will succeed Thatcher Scism.

Other officers named were Melvin McMackins, vice president; Alex Waters, secretary; and Ferrell Miller, treasurer.

The club unanimously affirmed a slate of officers presented by a nominating committee composed of past presidents of the club of which Stoner was chairman.

The club was told how pathology aids diagnosis of diseases for the living and how it helps survivors of the dead by Dr. Stephen Parks, pathologist at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

All tests in the hospital are under supervision of the pathologist.

Dr. Parks said that autopsies are useful to determine cause of death, whether homicide or suicide, the effectiveness of drugs, tracing the course of disease. The post mortems assist doctors, members of the family and in some cases law enforcement officers and lawyers.

If an inherited disease caused death the family may benefit from the information.

Dr. Parks said that to become accredited a hospital must have a pathologist on its staff and that autopsies must be performed on 20 per cent or more of patients who die there.

Allan Hubbard reported that there were 362 people served at the club's chili day April 3.

The Tri State Hospital for Crippled Adults in Memphis asked the club be polled whether members favored raising racial barriers for patients. Members approved admission of Negroes.

S. W. Duckworth was welcomed back in the club after spending the winter in Brownswood, Tex.

Johnson Arrives in Uruguay for Hemispheric Summit Conference

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — President Johnson arrived today for a milestone summit conference and pledged the United States to support the cause of the Latin American people "which does not admit of the slightest delay." But he faced serious snags in the negotiations on Latin America's economic future.

The President, setting foot on South American soil for the first time brought a plea that the pace of the Alliance for Progress be quickened.

This was the business before foreign ministers of 19 nations who have been meeting here for long, wearing hours in advance of Wednesday's first formal summit session.

But, as a U.S. government source put it, the United States is faced here with a choice between "desirable policy and harsh necessity." This referred to Latin American pleas for unrestricted use of U. S. loan dollars to buy anywhere in the world market. It involves the critical problem of an unfavorable U.S. balance of payments.

The President, smiling and looking relaxed, waved to welcomers as he stepped from the helicopter that brought him to this sun-splashed rich man's resort from Montevideo.

The President made his formal arrival remarks during welcoming ceremonies in Montevideo, Uruguay's capital, delivering in Spanish the statement about the cause of the people that admits no delay.

Four helicopters escorted his craft into nearby Punta del Este, three of them with state and security men and one with security men. A Uruguayan fighter plane flew cover, adding to the U.S. security men's nervousness since apparently they had not been briefed on its appearance.

Security was extraordinarily tight in a zone of three square miles around Beaulieu, the villa assigned to President Johnson. Not a single disturbing incident has taken place here despite Communist agitation.

Swarms of police and troops surrounded the security zone of three square miles in the villa area. All access in and out of Punta del Este was heavily guarded. Antiaircraft guns were in strategic positions. Destroyer escorts and a communications ship prowled the water just off the coast of the Punta del Este Peninsula.

The official reception for the U.S. President — the bands, the color guards, the salute and the whole gamut of state visit ceremony — was restricted to Montevideo.

In Punta del Este, the arrival was all business with presidential aides and Secretary of State Rusk waiting to greet him.

Because of Communist agitation, extreme security measures kept visitors away from the Montevideo airport and only reporters and officials were present when Johnson arrived.

Johnson was welcomed to Uruguay by President Oscar Gestido. He pumped Johnson's hand and in a short speech told him his visit "fills us with joy for you are the respresentative of an eminent people."

Johnson landed in brilliant sunlight and the temperature was 86 degrees, unusually high for autumn in this part of the hemisphere.

Johnson, garbed in a dark blue suit and blue necktie, was the first to emerge from the helicopter. He waved amiably to the waiting welcomers.

Three of the accompanying helicopters also carried members of the President's staff. The fourth of the escort was all security, who were reported nervous about the Uruguayan fighter plane flying cover. It was reported that the security men had not been briefed on this.

Security has been so extraordinarily tight however, that despite Communist threats to stage some sort of uproar, not a single Communist had yet appeared on the scene.

As the U.S. chief executive

Court Rules Draft Card Burning Act Of Free Speech

BOSTON AP -- Draft card burning is "a demonstration of free speech," the 1st U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled, and it said the amendment to the Selective Service law prohibiting it is unconstitutional.

The ruling Monday was in the case of David Paul O'Brien, 21, of Framingham, who was sentenced to six years in prison after publicly burning his draft card.

Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich upheld the conviction, however, because O'Brien had violated another section of the law by not having the card in his possession.

Aldrich sent the case back to U. S. District Court with instructions to vacate the six-year sentence and impose a new one. He said he feared the original term had been imposed because of public burning.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Britain's "A Man for All Seasons" topped Hollywood's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," six Oscars to five, in Academy Awards ceremonies televised Monday night after a late-hour strike settlement.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy — ex-movie stars themselves — applauded the presentations from eighth row center and guffawed as master of ceremonies Bob Hope quipped:

"Tonight we salute Hollywood, the birthplace of politicians. Soon we'll need another category — best performance by a governor."

"A Man for All Seasons," the struggle of Sir Thomas More against King Henry VIII's scheming lieutenants, was acclaimed by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as Best Picture of 1966.

It won Oscars also for Paul Scofield, in the title role; its director, Fred Zinnemann; and for color cinematography, costume design and screenplay.

Scofield, 45, was in England rehearsing a play. His Oscar was accepted by Wendy Hiller, nominated for her supporting role in "A Man for All Seasons."

"Virginia Woolf," the profanity-studded clash of a couple whose hate is grounded in love, brought a second Oscar to Elizabeth Taylor, 35, who won in 1960 for "Butterfield 8."

"Woolf" was acclaimed also for black and white cinematography, costume design and art direction.

Sandy Dennis, the young college professor's wife in "Woolf," received the supporting-actress award.

Stepping onstage with his broken left arm in a cast and his face bruised -injuries received in falling off a motorcycle last Saturday — he said:

"The other day as I was falling off my bicycle, I had the following thoughts: I was given a juicy part, allowed to work with talented, exhilarating, beautiful people and received a great deal of money. Really" — glancing at his Oscar — "don't you think this is going too far?"

Richard Burton and Miss Taylor were at work on "The Comedians" in France. By telephone, she said she was glad to have won but sorry that her nominee husband hadn't.

Miss Dennis, 23, a Nebraskan born in Hastings and reared in Lincoln, received the news of her victory while dining in a New York restaurant with her husband, jazz saxophonist Gerry Mulligan.

Execution Stay Angers Man Condemned to Die

REIDSVILLE, Ga. AP -- A convicted rapist, only 45 minutes away from death in Georgia's electric chair, has described his 60 day reprieve as a "great injustice."

William Patrick Clark was scheduled to die at 10:45 a.m. Monday. At 10 a.m. Gov. Lester Maddox stayed the execution to allow a sanity commission to examine him.

Clark, 29, convicted of raping a 19-year-old DeKalb County girl on her way home from church last year, had said he was ready to die. He expressed anger at the stay.

"He must be nuts," Maddox said in staying the execution.

Birth Control Favored

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House today advanced a bill to allow public dissemination of birth control information and killed another to open all barber and beauty shops to anyone regardless of race, creed or color.

The barber and beauty shop bill died on a 76-83 vote. Only one member voiced opposition.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, said the proposal goes beyond the federal public accommodations act. Now only those barber and beauty shops located in motels and hotels must accept all customers.

The birth control bill was moved forward on a voice vote. It would, in effect, let the state welfare and health divisions disseminate birth control information, particularly to those persons on welfare.

It would also allow the open sale of birth control devices or drugs.

Rep. Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, lost in his effort to change the bill so birth control

In other cases heard, Cora Reese, Bell City, charged on three counts of forgery, waived preliminary hearings on each charge. She is scheduled to appear Thursday in Circuit Court at Benton.

Town Proud of Being Backward

RADEC, Calif. AP -- The people of Radec are proud because their town is backward. The backwardest place there is, they call it.

So backward, in fact, that townspeople even spell its name that way.

But the 10 families have a beef with the highway department--there are no road signs to let motorists know they have been in town.

"Radec isn't much," says David Welch, a town father of this village 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles. "No sidewalks. No street lights. At night the place is so dark those going through don't even know what they've missed."

Welch has strung six signs around his house. All read "Radec."

The village got its post office years ago, and the townspeople had to decide on a name. They wanted "Cedar."

"Up until we got the post office," says Vivian McGaugh, "we were nameless. When someone would ask where do you live, we would always say 15 miles up the road from Temecula."

There already was a Cedar, Calif.

"We couldn't think of anything else, so we spelled Cedar backwards and we've been Radec ever since," Mrs. A. E. Bergman said.

Irene Welch, proprietor of the town's only general store, was asked by a visitor to point out some of the outstanding features of Radec, nestled in the Aguba Tibia mountains.

"You got me stumped," she replied. "I can't think of a thing."

Clinton Davidson has asked the state for "City Limit" signs so people will know "They've been to the most backward place in the nation."

City to Open Battle on Mosquitoes

The city will begin spraying for mosquitoes in neighborhoods in the southwest part of town beginning at sundown today, City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

Parents are requested to keep children in the house when the fogging machine is in the area.

The spraying crew will try to cover the west section of town tonight. It will work until 1 a.m. or 2 a.m.

Tomorrow night the crew will begin spraying the east section of town.

The spraying will continue throughout the week.

Weed Kill Thieves Make Second Strike

CHARLESTON -- Beware of insecticide snatchers!

Authorities investigated.

Koch to Be Club Pilot

Fred Koch, manager of Reliable Life Insurance Company, was elected president of the Rotary club last night at a meeting in the Rustic Rock Inn. He will succeed Thatcher Scism.

Other officers named were Melvin McMackins, vice president; Alex Waters, secretary; and Ferrell Miller, treasurer.

The club unanimously affirmed a slate of officers presented by a nominating committee composed of past presidents of the club of which Stoner was chairman.

The club was told how pathology aids diagnosis of diseases for the living and how it helps survivors of the dead by Dr. Stephen Parks, pathologist at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

All tests in the hospital are under supervision of the pathologist.

Dr. Parks said that autopsies are useful to determine cause of death, whether homicide or suicide, the effectiveness of drugs, tracing the course of disease. The post mortems assist doctors, members of the family and in some cases law enforcement officers and lawyers.

If an inherited disease caused death the family may benefit from the information.

Dr. Parks said that to become accredited a hospital must have a pathologist on its staff and that autopsies must be performed on 20 per cent or more of patients who die there.

Allan Hubbard reported that there were 362 people served at the club's chili day April 3.

The Tri State Hospital for Crippled Adults in Memphis asked the club be polled whether members favored raising racial barriers for patients. Members approved admission of Negroes.

S. W. Duckworth was welcomed back in the club after spending the winter in Brownswood, Tex.

Charles Green led singing accompanied by Mary Anne Bruce at the piano.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
MRS. HARRY SHARP SR.

Once again the angel of death visited Sikeston and called home one of Sikeston's most beloved and respected women, Mrs. Harry (Madge) Sharp.

She was beloved of our mother and our wife so she must have been one of God's chosen children.

Every hour of her life was full and used constructively.

Her house was in order. She is now with Harry where we know she wanted to be.

The American press has been coming in for its share of criticism, maybe more than its share.

This comment is prompted by a case showing that the rumored death of crusading journalism is highly exaggerated.

Robert G. Aldrich has been in the newspaper business for more than 17 years. Ever since 1963, he's been editor and publisher of the Addison "Advertiser," a weekly with a circulation of about 1,000, published in a small, upstate New York community.

On a July day in 1964, a 35-year-old father, who lived in Addison, died when his car crashed into a jack-knifing semi-trailer truck at a bridge over a railroad.

Touched by the tragedy, Aldrich began to dig into the record of the overpass, which had a reputation as a danger spot in the community. It was well merited, the newspaperman found. Over the preceding four years, accidents at the bridge had claimed, on average, one human life every 60 days.

Aldrich investigated and found:

--A sharp S-curve on one side of the bridge, coupled with pavement that had a tendency to be slippery, often resulted in trucks going out of control.

--Drivers approaching from the other direction had their vision of the bridge obscured by a slight rise; this prevented them from seeing that another vehicle was out of control.

--A center beam in the bridge, because of the angle of approach, looked much lower than it was, and clearance notices were posted right on the bridge; truckers often slammed on their brakes suddenly because they feared their loads were too high for the bridge.

Aldrich poured it on highway and railroad officials in scathing editorials and feature stories. He organized local merchants, who took out ads in the "Advertiser" to support his crusade.

In an open letter to government officials, Aldrich charged:

"If accidents persist in the same location...then there must be an accessory to the crime because the situation has been unchanged."

The results: The troublesome beam was taken down, rumble pavements were installed, and oversize reflective signs warning of the special danger were posted, along with advance warning of the clearance. Finally, the bridge has been surveyed for replacement.

Since that death in July, 1964, and the taking of corrective action, Robert Aldrich has been honored by an award from his fellow publishers. What's more important, there have been no fatalities - in fact, no accidents - at the bridge.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL SAID

"Still, if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival. There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

It's some comfort to find at least one spot in New York where tradition persists; no wonder guests keep coming back to the Algonquin Hotel year after year.

For one thing, this birthplace of the New Yorker magazine and longtime rendezvous of the Roundtablers of a generation ago, refuses to go ultra modern with its elevators. The cars are late models, but all carry operators.

"The day we need self - service elevators is the day I sell the Algonquin," Ben Bodne, owner, promises.

There's a rule requiring men to wear ties, and women to be clad in skirts if they want to enter the dining room. Brendan Behan, the playwright, who practiced a high degree of sartorial noncomfornity, tried to crash the Rose Room without a tie, and lost that round.

Tallulah Bankhead charged into the dining room clad in slacks, but Raul, the maitre d'', turned thumbs down. Finally, after considerable debate, he fastened a tablecloth around her, everybody was happy, and tradition triumphed.

Go to the Algonquin once; 20 years later staff members will call you by name.

According to reports, the Capitol is still in a state of shock over the guilty verdict that a federal district court jury handed down against Bobby Baker.

What now concerns Capitol Hill cynics is that the Court of Appeals, whose chief judge is the very liberal David Bazelon, will discover some new technicality that the Supreme Court will accept and invalidate the Baker conviction or order a new trial.

With Baker having so many friends in high places, Capitol Cynics still remain unconvinced that he will ever serve any time in jail.

If this does happen, the American people have had it.

"Overconfidence in one's ability to drive can be a deadly state of mind," it was noted today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"A person who is overconfident in his driving tends to relax his guard. Should a traffic accident situation suddenly develop, that person will find it difficult to adjust to the situation and avoid the accident."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that drivers tends to be especially overconfident in their driving in certain instances. For example, they often relax behind the wheel when the weather is good. They look at the scenery and allow it to distract them from their main job of driving. Statistics show that most accidents occur in clear weather.

Traveling on a straight thoroughfare also brings about a feeling of overconfidence to many drivers. A driver can see a great distance ahead on these roadways and feels he will be able to readily see any danger. Records of the Highway Patrol indicate that most of our accidents occur on straight roads.

Another instance when drivers tend to be overconfident is when traffic is light at night. Motorists tend to increase their speed, and as a result many are unable to avoid an accident situation. Although there is a greater amount of traffic during the day, a significant number of Missouri's rural fatal accidents last year occurred at night.

"Drivers must always be on the alert for potential accident situations," the Colonel declared. "No matter what the weather may be, no matter what type of road is traveled, and no matter how much traffic is in the area, drivers must be on guard and concentrate on their driving at all times.

"Confidence in one's driving ability is fine, but overconfidence can be tragic. Caution and constant attention are the price of accident-free driving in today's traffic," he concluded.

A very attractive, but unhappy woman, finding no solution for her problems turned to psychiatry. On her first visit the psychiatrist obtained a bit of her medical history. The doctor was dumbfounded. "How," he asked, "could you remain a virgin and still be married three times?"

"Well, doctor, I think this is the root of my problem," said the woman. "The first time I got married I was very young. The man was very handsome but our marriage was soon broken up before it was consummated when I found out my husband was cheating on me with the milkman. Several years later, I decided to re-marry. But this time I thought I would be smart, so I married a very old man. He was 89 years old, rich and feeble. He died on me within months, having never touched me . . . and he left me very rich. So I travelled around and met many men. Then I met Harry. He was tall, well-built, virile-looking and intelligent . . .everything a woman could want. So after a whirl-wind courtship we were married."

"But I don't understand," queried the doctor, "you say he is virile, everything a woman could want. Your history shows you've been married three years, yet you're still a virgin?"

"It's this way," the woman answered. "My husband is an advertising executive. For three years now, every night he comes home, sits on the edge of the bed and tells me how wonderful it's going to be!"

BUILD PRIDE IN U.S.

Our public schools and colleges have been the target of growing criticism for failure to teach the economic principles on which the United States was built and freedom rests.

In a recent editorial, the Rocky Mount, North Carolina, Telegram said: "According to the Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce, precious few students know. . .about our free enterprise system."

A questionnaire was circulated among the junior and senior classes of a Forsyth County high school, one of the questions being, "Which of the following do you think should be government - owned or operated: Railroads, Banks. Steel Companies. None. (Only 34 per cent said they felt none should be government-owned.)"

A second question: "Do you agree that the fairest economic system takes from each according to his ability and gives to each according to his needs?" Said the Telegram, "Now here is where we run head-on into the fantastic ignorance of high school students about Communist economic philosopyy and socialism. On the foregoing question, half of the students answered yes. That question states the key feature of the Communist economic theory . . .The Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce sees the need for better understanding of the free enterprise system -- by promoting it in the schools. The idea will probably be tried through a general course on basic economics offered to teachers. With a firmer background in basic economics for teachers, it is felt the students then can receive a better economic understanding of the free enterprise system."

H. L. Hunt Says

AMEND, NOT REWRITE THE CONSTITUTION

There are enormous dangers to individual freedom inherent in the current campaign to call a Constitutional Convention. Although the movement is being spearheaded under the guise of preventing further federal encroachment in the affairs of individual citizens, the fact is if such a Convention were called it would open a veritable Pandora's box of trouble and probably result in further loss of liberty.

For this reason patriots should not support resolutions requesting Congress to call a Constitutional Convention. When the Constitution was drafted 180 years ago it was contemplated that it could always be amended, and it has been so amended 25 times, nearly always for the good of freedom.

But the fact remains that under the present Constitution an infant nation grew to greatness unparalleled in the history of the world. It is therefore sheer folly to risk losing the constructive provisions of the U.S. Constitution by holding a Constitutional Convention at a time when a constructive atmosphere is less prevalent than usual. Delegates to a new Constitutional Convention would no doubt be subjected to bloc pressures and a myriad of other political pressures, or could follow their whims and rewrite the Constitution in a manner that could be devastating to all hope of freedom.

Patriots should urge their Legislatures to pass resolutions asking only for specific amendments. Really constructive action is for State Legislatures to pass a resolution directing Congress to immediately initiate and submit to the States for ratification a Constitutional Amendment providing for apportionment of at least one House of State Legislatures on a basis other than population. Then another resolution should be passed directing initiation of another amendment providing for a fair and just reform of the Electoral College System. HLH.

The acorns are memories. Planted in the heart, they take root there and in time become mighty oak trees, and pleasant indeed it is at times to lie in their green shade and recall the past.

When it comes to saving up memories, every man is his own midas. No other human being in the world can quite match his hoard, for each collection is unique and personal.

But it is fun to share memories. And you've got a pretty good collection yourself if you can look back and remember when:

A dude was a fellow who wore gray spats and pearl buttons.

In a small town nothing really memorable usually happened except on Saturday nights. During the week you talked about what you had done last Saturday night and what you looked forward to doing next Saturday night.

Every school desk held an inkwell, and sooner or later every young lad succumbed to the temptation to dip into the inkwell a braid from the girl who sat at the desk in front of him.

Only spendthrifts or very wealthy men bought suits that had only one pair of pants.

Nobody thought cigarettes caused cancer, but it was agreed by many that if you smoked them regularly you were pretty likely to come down with tuberculosis, which then was just as feared.

Children didn't expect their parents to keep them entertained. They could spend a whole afternoon happily blowing soap bubbles through an old corncob pipe.

It was a mark of real affluence to be able to have a cast iron stag in your front lawn.

You didn't have to be a contortionist to get in and out of automobiles. They had running boards to step on.

A nickel cherry pop was the most popular soft drink in America. But if you wanted to make a big splurge you bought your best girl a 10-cent ice cream soda—just to let her know that when she went out with a real sport like you nothing was too good for her.

If a warm spell came along during a cold winter, everyone sagely remarked, "this is pneumonia weather."

You knew you were in an up-and-coming town when the undertaker (he also ran the furniture store) sold off his horses and bought a motorized hearse.

WASHINGTON -- To understand the full tragedy of Adam Clayton Powell as he faces reelection in Harlam today, you have to know the story of his father.

It was his father's Baptist church in Harlem that Adam Junior inherited, and Adam senior talks glowingly of his son in his autobiography, "Against the Tide."

Certainly the Powells, both father and son, rose to the top against the tide. It's important to consider this, and their background, as congress passes judgment on Adam and whether he should be seated again.

From the grandson of a slave to the chairmanship of one of the most important committees of congress is a long way to come in half a century. Achievement, however, also merits responsibility.

Adam senior was born in Franklin County, Va., 25 days after Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. He never knew his father. His mother was part Indian and her father German.

"My maternal grandmother," wrote Adam sr., "was very fond of eating rats. She was a great hunter of small game. My earliest recollections were of direst poverty. The wealth of the south had been destroyed by the civil war and both white and poor colored suffered together.

"There was not a white man within twelve miles of our cabin who'd pay a wage of 50 cents a day or a white woman able to pay more than 25 cents for a day's washing.

REARED IN POVERTY

"Mr. Albert Martin rented us a one-room log cabin with about five acres of land for $1 a month. Everything we could raise on these five acres belonged to our family. Our big job was to raise this $1 every month for rent and to pay for a yoke of oxen which we had bought on the instalment plan.

"It required about six years to pay for these oxen. Old Buck and Bill died about a year after our last instalment was met, and we had shoes made from their hides. It was the first time the whole family had had new shoes at one time. Many a time on a frosty morning when the ground was covered with snow, I made the cow get up so I could warm my feet on the ground where she had lain for the night.

"We slept, bathed, cooked, ate and entertained in one room. Breakfast was served religiously at 6 a.m. I recall one year when our crops were so poor that both our corn and wheat were exhausted in the month of April, and we lived on dried apples and black - eyed peas for six weeks until the new crop matured. Even to this day the smell of dried apples nauseates me.

"The first big day in my life was October 1, 1897. On that day I discarded my old, torn shirt, put on a pair of trousers woven by my grandmother, and started to school. The school was five miles from our cabin and was taught by a white man named Jake Bowles. That morning, when I entered the log schoolhouse, I could not name a single letter. The alphabet looked to me like a crossword puzzle. When school dismissed that evening, I could name the twenty - six letters which make the English language. The next day I said them backwards."

Adam Sr. tells in detail how the family moved to West Virginia, how he worked in the coal mines making $80 to $100 a month. "But every dollar of this and all I could borrow," he added, "was sacrificed to the demon of gambling which possessed me, soul and body. On March 1, 1885, I had lost all my wages, $40 of borrowed money and my overcoat. Aside from my dirty mining clothes, my wardrobe had been reduced to a pair of cheap trousers and a red sweater.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL

"Something happened that week stranger than any piece of fiction I ever read. The saloons and the gambling dens were deserted Saturday night, and people walked the streets in hushed silence. I learned that all the drifting Christians, who were the main supporters of the dives, had gone to the Methodist and Baptist churches on Friday night. Each of these two churches had begun a week of prayer on January 1 that had continued nightly for two months. . . It seems as if some unseen messenger had slipped into every home, hut, dive, den and whispered, 'something is going to happen at the churches. Come out and witness it for yourself.'. . .

"Five preachers came out of that revival, and this writer was one of them."

However, Adam's father still experienced plenty of ups and downs. He went to Howard University Law School in Washington in 1887 as a step toward being elected to congress, but never got to congress because "first, I overrated myself, and secondly, I took the wrong path." He began preaching. He preached in churches in Philadelphia, New Haven and finally the Abyssinian church in New York where he became one of the greatest pastors of his day.

"If I had the privilege of selecting the race into which I wanted to be born and to work," wrote Adam Sr., "I would select the race in which I was born and in which I have lived and worked, for this race needs me more than any other race."

His son Adam rose to even greater heights in the government of the United States and did more to break the handcuffs of the Negro than any other man of his race -- until he fell by the wayside. But just as Adam sr. put liquor and women aside in the coal -mining towns of West Virginia, so it may be possible for Adam jr., to do likewise.

These are things which congress should remember. Certainly Adam's sins were not as great as those of a certain senator from Connecticut or a certain anti-Negro congressman from South South Carolina. What the House of Representatives will have to decide when Adam Jr. stands before its bar seeking admission again is whether there shall be one cause for the white goose from Connecticut, another sauce for the black gander from Harlem.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
MRS. HARRY SHARP SR.

Once again the angel of death visited Sikeston and called home one of Sikeston's most beloved and respected women, Mrs. Harry (Madge) Sharp.

She was beloved of our mother and our wife so she must have been one of God's chosen children.

Every hour of her life was full and used constructively.

Her house was in order. She is now with Harry where we know she wanted to be.

The American press has been coming in for its share of criticism, maybe more than its share.

This comment is prompted by a case showing that the rumored death of crusading journalism is highly exaggerated.

Robert G. Aldrich has been in the newspaper business for more than 17 years. Ever since 1963, he's been editor and publisher of the Addison "Advertiser," a weekly with a circulation of about 1,000, published in a small, upstate New York community.

On a July day in 1964, a 35-year-old father, who lived in Addison, died when his car crashed into a jack-knifing semi-trailer truck at a bridge over a railroad.

Touched by the tragedy, Aldrich began to dig into the record of the overpass, which had a reputation as a danger spot in the community. It was well merited, the newspaperman found. Over the preceding four years, accidents at the bridge had claimed, on average, one human life every 60 days.

Aldrich investigated and found:

--A sharp S-curve on one side of the bridge, coupled with pavement that had a tendency to be slippery, often resulted in trucks going out of control.

--Drivers approaching from the other direction had their vision of the bridge obscured by a slight rise; this prevented them from seeing that another vehicle was out of control.

--A center beam in the bridge, because of the angle of approach, looked much lower than it was, and clearance notices were posted right on the bridge; truckers often slammed on their brakes suddenly because they feared their loads were too high for the bridge.

Aldrich poured it on highway and railroad officials in scathing editorials and feature stories. He organized local merchants, who took out ads in the "Advertiser" to support his crusade.

In an open letter to government officials, Aldrich charged:

"If accidents persist in the same location...then there must be an accessory to the crime because the situation has been unchanged."

The results: The troublesome beam was taken down, rumble pavements were installed, and oversize reflective signs warning of the special danger were posted, along with advance warning of the clearance. Finally, the bridge has been surveyed for replacement.

Since that death in July, 1964, and the taking of corrective action, Robert Aldrich has been honored by an award from his fellow publishers. What's more important, there have been no fatalities - in fact, no accidents - at the bridge.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL SAID

"Still, if you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival. There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory, because it is better to perish than live as slaves."

For one thing, this birthplace of the New Yorker magazine and longtime rendezvous of the Roundtablers of a generation ago, refuses to go ultra modern with its elevators. The cars are late models, but all carry operators.

"The day we need self - service elevators is the day I sell the Algonquin," Ben Bodne, owner, promises.

There's a rule requiring men to wear ties, and women to be clad in skirts if they want to enter the dining room. Brendan Behan, the playwright, who practiced a high degree of sartorial noncomfornity, tried to crash the Rose Room without a tie, and lost that round.

Tallulah Bankhead charged into the dining room clad in slacks, but Raul, the maitre d", turned thumbs down. Finally, after considerable debate, he fastened a tablecloth around her, everybody was happy, and tradition triumphed.

Go to the Algonquin once; 20 years later staff members will call you by name.

According to reports, the Capitol is still in a state of shock over the guilty verdict that a federal district court jury handed down against Bobby Baker.

What now concerns Capitol Hill cynics is that the Court of Appeals, whose chief judge is the very liberal David Bazelon, will discover some new technicality that the Supreme Court will accept and invalidate the Baker conviction or order a new trial.

With Baker having so many friends in high places, Capitol Cynics still remain unconvinced that he will ever serve any time in jail.

If this does happen, the American people have had it.

"Overconfidence in one's ability to drive can be a deadly state of mind," it was noted today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"A person who is overconfident in his driving tends to relax his guard. Should a traffic accident situation suddenly develop, that person will find it difficult to adjust to the situation and avoid the accident."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that drivers tends to be especially overconfident in their driving in certain instances. For example, they often relax behind the wheel when the weather is good. They look at the scenery and allow it to distract them from their main job of driving. Statistics show that most accidents occur in clear weather.

Traveling on a straight thoroughfare also brings about a feeling of overconfidence to many drivers. A driver can see a great distance ahead on these roadways and feels he will be able to readily see any danger. Records of the Highway Patrol indicate that most of our accidents occur on straight roads.

Another instance when drivers tend to be overconfident is when traffic is light at night. Motorists tend to increase their speed, and as a result many are unable to avoid an accident situation. Although there is a greater amount of traffic during the day, a significant number of Missouri's rural fatal accidents last year occurred at night.

"Drivers must always be on the alert for potential accident situations," the Colonel declared. "No matter what the weather may be, no matter what type of road is traveled, and no matter how much traffic is in the area, drivers must be on guard and concentrate on their driving at all times.

"Confidence in one's driving ability is fine, but overconfidence can be tragic. Caution and constant attention are the price of accident-free driving in today's traffic," he concluded.

The doctor was dumbfounded. "How," he asked, "could you remain a virgin and still be married three times?"

"Well, doctor, I think this is the root of my problem," said the woman. "The first time I got married I was very young. The man was very handsome but our marriage was soon broken up before it was consummated when I found out my husband was cheating on me with the milkman. Several years later, I decided to re-marry. But this time I thought I would be smart, so I married a very old man. He was 89 years old, rich and feeble. He died on me within months, having never touched me . . . and he left me very rich. So I travelled around and met many men. Then I met Harry. He was tall, well-built, virile-looking and intelligent . . .everything a woman could want. So after a whirl-wind courtship we were married."

"But I don't understand," queried the doctor, "you say he is virile, everything a woman could want. Your history shows you've been married three years, yet you're still a virgin?"

"It's this way," the woman answered. "My husband is an advertising executive. For three years now, every night he comes home, sits on the edge of the bed and tells me how wonderful it's going to be!"

BUILD PRIDE IN U.S.

Our public schools and colleges have been the target of growing criticism for failure to teach the economic principles on which the United States was built and freedom rests.

In a recent editorial, the Rocky Mount, North Carolina, Telegram said: "According to the Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce, precious few students know. . .about our free enterprise system."

A questionnaire was circulated among the junior and senior classes of a Forsyth County high school, one of the questions being, "Which of the following do you think should be government - owned or operated: Railroads, Banks, Steel Companies, None. (Only 34 per cent said they felt none should be government-owned.)"

A second question: "Do you agree that the fairest economic system takes from each according to his ability and gives to each according to his needs?" Said the Telegram, "Now here is where we run head-on into the fantastic ignorance of high school students about Communist economic philosopyy and socialism. On the foregoing question, half of the students answered yes. That question states the key feature of the Communist economic theory . . .The Education Committee of the Winston - Salem Chamber of Commerce sees the need for better understanding of the free enterprise system -- by promoting it in the schools. The idea will probably be tried through a general course on basic economics offered to teachers. With a firmer background in basic economics for teachers, it is felt the students then can receive a better economic understanding of the free enterprise system."

H. L. Hunt Says

AMEND, NOT REWRITE THE CONSTITUTION

There are enormous dangers to individual freedom inherent in the current campaign to call a Constitutional Convention. Although the movement is being spearheaded under the guise of preventing further federal encroachment in the affairs of individual citizens, the fact is if such a Convention were called it would open a veritable Pandora's box of trouble and probably result in further loss of liberty.

For this reason patriots should not support resolutions requesting Congress to call a Constitutional Convention. When the Constitution was drafted 180 years ago it was contemplated that it could always be amended, and it has been so amended 25 times, nearly always for the good of freedom.

But the fact remains that under the present Constitution an infant nation grew to greatness unparalleled in the history of the world. It is therefore sheer folly to risk losing the constructive provisions of the U.S. Constitution by holding a Constitutional Convention at a time when a constructive atmosphere is less prevalent than usual. Delegates to a new Constitutional Convention would no doubt be subjected to bloc pressures and a myriad of other political pressures, or could follow their whims and rewrite the Constitution in a manner that could be devastating to all hope of freedom.

Patriots should urge their Legislatures to pass resolutions asking only for specific amendments. Really constructive action is for State Legislatures to pass a resolution directing Congress to immediately initiate and submit to the States for ratification a Constitutional Amendment providing for apportionment of at least one House of State Legislatures on a basis other than population. Then another resolution should be passed directing initiation of another amendment providing for a fair and just reform of the Electoral College System. HLH.

The acorns are memories. Planted in the heart, they take root there and in time become mighty oak trees, and pleasant indeed it is at times to lie in their green shade and recall the past.

When it comes to saving up memories, every man is his own midas. No other human being in the world can quite match his hoard, for each collection is unique and personal.

But it is fun to share memories. And you've got a pretty good collection yourself if you can look back and remember when:

In a small town nothing really memorable usually happened except on Saturday nights. During the week you talked about what you had done last Saturday night and what you looked forward to doing next Saturday night.

Every school desk held an inkwell, and sooner or later every young lad succumbed to the temptation to dip into the inkwell a braid from the girl who sat at the desk in front of him.

Only spendthrifts or very wealthy men bought suits that had only one pair of pants.

Nobody thought cigarettes caused cancer, but it was agreed by many that if you smoked them regularly you were pretty likely to come down with tuberculosis, which then was just as feared.

Children didn't expect their parents to keep them entertained. They could spend a whole afternoon happily blowing soap bubbles through an old corncob pipe.

It was a mark of real affluence to be able to have a cast iron stag in your front lawn.

You didn't have to be a contortionist to get in and out of automobiles. They had running boards to step on.

A nickel cherry pop was the most popular soft drink in America. But if you wanted to make a big splurge you bought your best girl a 10-cent ice cream soda—just to let her know that when she went out with a real sport like you nothing was too good for her.

You knew you were in an up-and-coming town when the undertaker (he also ran the furniture store) sold off his horses and bought a motorized hearse.

A small boy couldn't make up his mind whether to grow up and be the engineer of a train or the conductor who took up the tickets and also, with an air of judicious gravity, would pull a big gold watch from his pocket and tell passengers exactly what time it was—to the exact second.

Planning Meals for Over 65

By Mrs. Mattie E. Aslin
University Extension Center

KENNETT - In the United States there are about 15 million citizens who have passed their 65th birthday-citizens who have shed the responsibilities of an occupation and who are free to enjoy their leisure. But, many of these old folks are not enjoying this leisure as much as they might. They are not as healthy as they might be if they would make food a strong ally, letting it help in every possible way. Being poorly nourished is often the reason for the complaints that drag an older person down...the chronic tired feeling...a gloomy outlook on life...loss of sleep... and yes,...even too much weight.

Being well fed is such an advantage, and being poorly fed is such a handicap, that it is worth the effort to move out of the not-well-enough-fed class and into the ranks of the wise eaters.

Satisfying meals can be planned daily from the four food groups. The minimum amount of food suggested for each day includes: two glasses of milk, four or more ounces of protein to be chosen from meat, poultry, fish or eggs, four servings of vegetables and fruit, (to include a dark green or yellow vegetable and a citrus fruit each day), and four servings of bread and cereal. These basic foods will supply the body with protein for maintenace of tissue and bones, minerals and vitamins for the regulation of body systems, and calories for warmth and energy.

There are many economical choices and interesting combinations possible among these four food groups. Fats, sweets, and other foods may be added to round out meals. For the best health, the minimum number of servings from each of the food groups should be chosen first, and then enough other foods to satisfy the appetite and maintain the best weight, can be added.

Purchasing and preparing the foods necessary for wise eating often becomes a burden for our older folks. Purchasing food for two may be made easier if these suggestions are kept in mind:

Buy no more food than can easily be used. A large economy-sized package or a large quantity of specially priced food is no bargain if it becomes spoiled or disliked before it is used.

Prices should be compared on the basis of price per serving rather than price per pound.

Keep up on the current food prices, purchasing those foods that are plentiful at lower cost.

Canned meat and fish may be cheaper than fresh meat. Too, they can be stored on the shelf easily; but, they do require more imagination to prepare them in interesting ways.

Split peas, dried beans and peanut butter, when used with a protein source such as milk, meat, egg or cheese, provide a good buy for main dishes.

Milk bills can be lowered by using non-fat dry milk in place of fluid milk.

Like purchasing, the preparation of meals for two, or one, can be simplified or streamlined. Cooking for two is easier if the recipes are for one or two servings. Recipes close at hand add vitalizing variety to meal preparation.

WHO IS A QUALIFIED MECHANIC

Displayed neatly on the wall at your dentist's, doctor's or lawyer's office, you are likely to see diplomas from this chool and that. These pieces of parchment tell you that your professional man has successfully completed the courses that qualify him to practice his trade. If you ask me, he probably will tell you that during the course of his career he never stops going to school, never stops learning. He must keep up with the latest findings of research and the new methods of diagnosis, treatment or procedure.

So it is with a good mechanic, and he enjoys a benefit that most professional men do not have. Lots of his schools are tuition free. All he has to do is take advantage of them. These schools are provided by manufacturers of automotive parts and equipment. They are designed to teach mechanics how to work on new, sophisticated automotive parts and how to use equipment for diagnosis and treatment of automotive ailments.

Mrs. Mae Harper, a vivacious mechanic of Los Angeles, holds 40 degrees from such schools. She and her husband own and operate an automotive service shop. They see to it that they and all their employees attend every school available to them. And they make every effort to furnish their shop with the best equipment to be had. Mrs. Harper, her husband and their employees are qualified mechanics.

Your own mechanic may be just as conscientious as Mrs. Harper is, but chances are you won't know it unless you ask. Next time you visit his shop, take a look around. You just might see a diploma or two hanging on the wall. And you might check to see if there is any literature lying around, too: printed matter that your mechanic studies so he will know what is going on in his trade. These things, plus his attitude about you and your car, can help you determine whether or not your mechanic is qualified. If he is more interested in helping you prevent problems that he is in fixing them after the fact, if he is careful about leaving no stone unturned until he has located the source of a problem, then you have found yourself a qualified mechanic. Stick with him.

WHO IS A QUALIFIED MECHANIC

Displayed neatly on the wall at your dentist's, doctor's or lawyer's office, you are likely to see diplomas from this school and that. These pieces of parchment tell you that your professional man has successfully completed the courses that qualify him to practice his trade. If you ask me, he probably will tell you that during the course of his career he never stops going to school, never stops learning. He must keep up with the latest findings of research and the new methods of diagnosis, treatment or procedure.

So it is with a good mechanic, and he enjoys a benefit that most professional men do not have. Lots of his schools are tuition free. All he has to do is take advantage of them. These schools are provided by manufacturers of automotive parts and equipment. They are designed to teach mechanics how to work on new, sophisticated automotive parts and how to use equipment for diagnosis and treatment of automotive ailments.

Mrs. Mae Harper, a vivacious mechanic of Los Angeles, holds 40 degrees from such schools. She and her husband own and operate an automotive service shop. They see to it that they and all their employees attend every school available to them. And they make every effort to furnish their shop with the best equipment to be had. Mrs. Harper, her husband and their employees are qualified mechanics.

Your own mechanic may be just as conscientious as Mrs. Harper is, but chances are you won't know it unless you ask. Next time you visit his shop, take a look around. You just might see a diploma or two hanging on the wall. And you might check to see if there is any literature lying around, too; printed matter that your mechanic studies so he will know what is going on in his trade. These things, plus his attitude about you and your car, can help you determine whether or not your mechanic is qualified. If he is more interested in helping you prevent problems that he is in fixing them after the fact, if he is careful about leaving no stone unturned until he has located the source of a problem, then you have found yourself a qualified mechanic. Stick with him.

Bulldog golfers won their third straight match of the season yesterday by defeating the Dexter Bearcats by 17 strokes, 165-182. The Bulldog record for the season is three wins against only one loss.

Red-hot "Ned" Matthews and Chuck Meyer took medalist honors for the Dogs. Both boys shot a three over par, 39. Rounding out the top four for Sikeston were Jim Godsey and Charles Stamp. Godsey had a 43 and Stamp finished with a 44.

Senior David Cowan was low man for the Bearcats with a 40. Other Dexter scores included Lynch 44, Agey 45, and Kirkbride 53.

The SHS golfers have now run their victory string to nine on the Sikeston course. The last home defeat was in 1964 when the Bulldogs fell to Cape Girardeau Central.

The Dogs didn't have the hot hand yesterday but turned in respectable scores.

The golfers started off well in the first matches but have trouble with individual scores consistency. This could mean trouble in the district match in May.

Presidential Opener To Yankees; Dodgers Start Where They Left Off

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Yankees were back at their old stand today, but Ralph Houk isn't ready to sign a long-term lease. New York's brave new world will have to mark time until Mickey Mantle can last more than 2½ innings.

"Too bad it isn't October," Manager Houk said Monday after his new-look Yankees had mauled Washington 8-0 in the American League's annual presidential opener to gain first place for the first time since Oct. 4, 1964.

The Los Angeles Dodgers ended the baseball season with a loss and begin the '67 campaign the same way LA suffered a 6-1 loss to Cincinnati.

New York's impressive getaway, a product of Mel Stottlemyre's brilliant two-hit pitching and a 14-hit attack, was marred by the loss of Mantle, whose debut as a first baseman was cut short when he aggravated a spring training injury during the Yankees' seven-run, third-inning explosion.

"We'll just have to wait and see how it comes around," Houk said. "We don't know how serious it is right now."

While Stottlemyre, a 20-game loser for the 10th-place Yanks last year, was throttling the Senators before a D.C. Stadium crowd of 44,382 that included President Johnson, the Cincinnati Reds got the jump in the National League with a 6-1 victory over Los Angeles' 1966 NL champs.

At Washington, the President added a new twist to pre-game ceremonies by tossing out the first ball — and then making two more pitches. Fred Valentine of the Senators caught the first delivery, and Yankee pitchers took it from there.

Al Downing and Dooley Womack grabbed the President's other two tosses before Stottlemyre stymied the Senators, yielding only an infield hit by Cap Peterson in the second inning and a ground single by Valentine in the ninth.

Tom Tresh touched off the Yankees' third-inning uprising with a double off loser Pete Richert and rookie Bill Robinson followed with the season's first homer.

Mantle singled, Pepitone tripled and Elston Howard singled for two more runs. Charlie Smith beat out an infield roller and John Kennedy, recently acquired from the Dodgers, lashed a two-run double before Stottlemyre capped the barrage with a run-scoring single.

Pinson and Johnson cracked first-inning homers for Cincinnati against right-hander Bob Miller, who has moved from the bullpen into Sandy Koufax' spot in the Dodgers pitching rotation. Simpson hit a pinch homer off reliever Ron Perranoski in the seventh before an appreciative turnout of 28,422 at Crosley Field.

Maloney, meanwhile, checked the Dodgers on five hits before complaining of tightness in his right shoulder. "It's nothing to be concerned about," he said later. "I usually experience this early in the season."

The other 16 major league clubs opened their pennant bids today, with Baltimore's world champion Orioles entertaining Minnesota and Pittsburgh's National League favorites visiting the Mets at New York.

In other American League openers, Chicago visited Boston this afternoon while Cleveland was at Kansas City and Detroit at California in night games.

Philadelphia was at Chicago, Atlanta at Houston and San Francisco at St. Louis in the National League, the latter two games going under the lights.

Hawks Fall

SAN FRANCISCO AP - Nate was great so the San Francisco Warriors head East today holding a 3-2 advantage over the St. Louis Hawks in their best-of-7 playoff for Western Division honors in the National Basketball Association.

Nate Thurmond, the 6-foot-11-inch Warrior pivotman, scored 23 points in San Francisco's 123-102 triumph at the Cow Palace Monday night. More important, he controlled the boards and grabbed 27 rebounds.

The two clubs meet Wednesday night at St. Louis Kiel Auditorium where San Francisco hasn't won this season and where the Hawks had squared the playoffs 2-2 with a pair of victories.

Tonight in Philadelphia, the 76ers will try to win the Eastern Division honors from the Boston Celtics. The 76ers need only one more triumph to take that playoff, leading 3-1 in the best-of-7 series.

The Warriors' Rick Barry, who suffered an ankle injury at St. Louis on Saturday night, returned to action with a 25-point performance as the Cow Palace game's leading scorer.

Quality Time Magic Words

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — "Quality time"—those were the magic words as coach Bob Timmons disclosed that his protege Jim Ryun, world mile record holder, will point for the Glenn Cunningham mile at the Kansas Relays April 22.

Ryun's army of followers know that quality time means something great is in the offing. The last time the little Kansas coach used those words was at the Texas Relays. The result was a world record 3:15.2 sprint medley relay with Ryun anchoring in 1:46.1 for the half mile.

The KU Relays one week from Ryun's 20th birthday will be the only chance of the entire Kansas outdoor season for Ryun to concentrate on a mile race. He plans to "rest" the week before the race, cutting his training down to only 30 or 40 miles.

"Jim will not run any race at the KU Relays prior to the Glenn Cunningham mile," Timmons said. "He will point for a quality time.

"This will be his only chance until after the NCAA championships in June. I think he certainly deserves it."

Ryun followed the same formula last year and the result was a 3:55.8, the fastest mile ever that early in the season. If the weather is good, that mark probably is doomed, but it's a little too much to expect Ryun to dip under his world mark of 3:51.3.

Timmons already has lined up four other sub-4-minute milers for the Glenn Cunningham mile, a major feat in view of the fact four of the world's top milers—Kipchoge Keino of Kenya, Bodo Tummler of West Germany and Jim Grelle and Dyrol Burleson of the United States—all have declined invitations. But Timmons has two more in his sights.

Keino's best of 3:53.4 is second only to Ryun in track history.

In the field with Ryun so far are ex-Texas star Richard Romo, with a career best of 3:58.8; Tom Day of the Los Angeles Striders, whose best of 3:56.4 won the U.S. Federation crown in 1965; Ted Nelson of the Striders, with a 3:59.4 last August; and Brigham Young freshman Tim Danielson, whose best was 3:59.4 at Chula Vista, Calif., in high school.

Romo was a key man in Ryun's 3:51.3 world mark at Berkeley Calif., last July 17. Romo led the first lap in 57.3, then he picked up the pace, forcing Ryun to run a 57.6—fastest second quarter in track history in a world class race. He pushed Ryun to a 1:55.5 half, even faster than his second half of 1:55.8.

Umbrella Proposed For Atlanta Stadium

ATLANTA AP -- A huge vinyl - plastic umbrella which could be raised in less than three hours to completely cover Atlanta Stadium would be a model for other structures throughout the country, the architects say.

The architects say their solution for foul weather conditions at the stadium would give Atlanta the largest protected playing field in the world -- exceeding Houston's celebrated Astrodome in size and spectator capacity.

Atlanta Stadium has a maximum capacity of 57,100.

The architects said the air-supported plastic umbrella would involve only one - third the cost of permanent stadium roofs, and the beauty of the design would be its flexibility.

The mast then would be retracted into a missile - type silo and the covering would be supported by air from a series of blowers situated throughout the stadium.

How would we start our conversation?
"Talk about the subject you know best—yourself. The broker wants you to feel completely at ease, and there's no better way than to make your own position clear right at the start. Tell him something about your financial situation, the amount you might invest after taking care of living expenses and the usual emergencies, and the investment goal you have in mind."

What if I don't know exactly what my goal should be?
"You wouldn't be the first. Many brokers feel that one of their most important services is to help the investor understand himself—how much risk he can afford and how an investment might help him get what he wants out of life."

Suppose I just want to make some money?

"Yes. Some people want a second income from dividends, so they examine a stock's dividend record and current yield. Others can invest their money and leave it in the market to grow. Others want to put their money in securities where they think the risk is relatively small—maybe bonds or high-grade preferred stocks. But picking exactly the right security is not as simple as pushing a button. There is risk in any investment, stocks or anything else."

When we've agreed on a goal, can I leave the rest up to the broker?
"It's your money and you'll want to have the final say in what you buy. Ask your broker for several stocks to consider. Ask him about a company's earnings and dividend record. Ask for his own opinion of a company's prospects. Discuss the risks. His job is to help you reason your way to a sensible decision."

"Member firms operate under a remarkable set of rules. Some deal with a firm's finances—having adequate capital, for example, and periodic audits of their books. And the brokers must be full-time brokers. Rules like these—and there are hundreds of them—are the result of the Exchange's experience over 175 years."

Francona Goes To Phillies

By By MIKE RECHT

Tony Taylor's career as a first baseman, a temporary thing anyway, has been cut in half even before Philadelphia opened its 1967 baseball season today.

The Phillies shortened Taylor's try at first by acquiring veteran first sacker Tito Francona from the St. Louis Cardinals for an undisclosed amount of cash Monday.

Taylor, normally a second baseman, had been the scheduled replacement for Bill White, whose injured foot is expected to sideline him for several months. Now, the right-handed Taylor will be platooned with the left-handed Francona.

Francona, 33, appeared in 83 games for the Cardinals last year, hit four home runs and drove in 17 runs while hitting .212. Philadelphia will be his sixth stop after tours with Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Baltimore in the American League and the Cardinals in his 10-year major league career.

To make room for him, the Phillies sent pitcher Bill Wilson outright to their San Diego farm club.

Piersall, 37, who has been in the major leagues since 1953 and with the Angels the last three years, hit .211 in 75 games last season.

The Angels also grabbed catcher Orlando McFarlane from Detroit on waivers and sent right-handed Fred Newman, southpaw Clyde Wright and catcher Merritt Ranew to Seattle. Shortstop Jack Hernandez was sent to Minnesota's Denver farm club, completing the trade that brought Jim Hall, Don Mincher and Pete Cimino to the Angels for Dean Chance.

The Chicago Cubs placed veteran infielder Felix Mantilla on the 21-day disabled list with a pulled tendon and added rookie pitcher Joe Nelkro and veteran catcher Dick Bertell to the roster.

Baltimore and Cleveland reached the 28-player limit as the Orioles optioned catcher Vic Roznovsky and pitcher Dave Leonhard to Rochester and the Indians returned rookie pitcher Billy Wynne to Jacksonville.

Houston optioned pitcher Danny Coombs to Asheville, N.C., returned catcher Doc Edwards to Oklahoma City and placed outfielder Alonzo Harris, 19, on the roster. The Astros decided not to activate coach Bob Lillis, a veteran infielder.

Hawks Fall

SAN FRANCISCO AP - Nate was great so the San Francisco Warriors head East today holding a 3-2 advantage over the St. Louis Hawks in their best-of-7 playoff for Western Division honors in the National Basketball Association.

Nate Thurmond, the 6-foot-11-inch Warrior pivotman, scored 23 points in San Francisco's 123-102 triumph at the Cow Palace Monday night. More important, he controlled the boards and grabbed 27 rebounds.

The two clubs meet Wednesday night at St. Louis Kiel Auditorium where San Francisco hasn't won this season and where the Hawks had squared the playoffs 2-2 with a pair of victories.

Tonight in Philadelphia, the 76ers will try to win the Eastern Division honors from the Boston Celtics. The 76ers need only one more triumph to take that playoff, leading 3-1 in the best-of-7 series.

The Warriors' Rick Barry, who suffered an ankle injury at St. Louis on Saturday night, returned to action with a 25-point performance as the Cow Palace game's leading scorer.

Quality Time Magic Words

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — "Quality time"—those were the magic words as coach Bob Timmons disclosed that his protege Jim Ryun, world mile record holder, will point for the Glenn Cunningham mile at the Kansas Relays April 22.

Ryun's army of followers know that quality time means something great is in the offing. The last time the little Kansas coach used those words was at the Texas Relays. The result was a world record 3:15.2 sprint medley relay with Ryun anchoring in 1:46.1 for the half mile.

The KU Relays one week from Ryun's 20th birthday will be the only chance of the entire Kansas outdoor season for Ryun to concentrate on a mile race. He plans to "rest" the week before the race, cutting his training down to only 30 or 40 miles.

"Jim will not run any race at the KU Relays prior to the Glenn Cunningham mile," Timmons said. "He will point for a quality time.

"This will be his only chance until after the NCAA championships in June. I think he certainly deserves it."

Ryun followed the same formula last year and the result was a 3:55.8, the fastest mile ever that early in the season. If the weather is good, that mark probably is doomed, but it's a little too much to expect Ryun to dip under his world mark of 3:51.3.

Timmons already has lined up four other sub-4-minute milers for the Glenn Cunningham mile, a major feat in view of the fact four of the world's top milers—Kipchoge Keino of Kenya, Bodo Tummler of West Germany and Jim Grelle and Dyrol Burleson of the United States—all have declined invitations. But Timmons has two more in his sights.

Keino's best of 3:53.4 is second only to Ryun in track history.

In the field with Ryun so far are ex-Texas star Richard Romo, with a career best of 3:58.8; Tom Day of the Los Angeles Striders, whose best of 3:56.4 won the U.S. Federation crown in 1965; Ted Nelson of the Striders, with a 3:59.4 last August; and Brigham Young freshman Tim Danielson, whose best was 3:59.4 at Chula Vista, Calif., in high school.

Romo was a key man in Ryun's 3:51.3 world mark at Berkeley Calif., last July 17. Romo led the first lap in 57.3, then he picked up the pace, forcing Ryun to run a 57.6—fastest second quarter in track history in a world class race. He pushed Ryun to a 1:55.5 half, even faster than his second half of 1:55.8.

Umbrella Proposed For Atlanta Stadium

ATLANTA AP -- A huge vinyl - plastic umbrella which could be raised in less than three hours to completely cover Atlanta Stadium would be a model for other structures throughout the country, the architects say.

The architects say their solution for foul weather conditions at the stadium would give Atlanta the largest protected playing field in the world -- exceeding Houston's celebrated Astrodome in size and spectator capacity.

Atlanta Stadium has a maximum capacity of 57,100.

The architects said the air-supported plastic umbrella would involve only one - third the cost of permanent stadium roofs, and the beauty of the design would be its flexibility.

"We can have sunshine for our grass in fair weather and still provide complete protection for fans whenever the rains come," they said.

The mast then would be retracted into a missile - type silo and the covering would be supported by air from a series of blowers situated throughout the stadium.

Host in their second game of the season, the Sikeston Bulldogs will go against Coach Gene Bess's Oran Eagles in a 4 p.m. baseball game Wednesday. The Dogs and the Eagles have clashed once before this season with the Sikeston squad coming out on top 3-0.

Sikeston's Hale Lane, will probably be going with ace-righthander, Rudy Manley again. Manley is 4-0 for the season in the won - loss bracket. He is credited with every win.

Sikeston will go against Oran, which has a 3-1 record. The Eagles added their third victory Monday afternoon with a second victory from Kelly, 7-1. They have also beaten Chaffee and a loss to Sikeston earlier.

How would we start our conversation?

"Talk about the subject you know best—yourself. The broker wants you to feel completely at ease, and there's no better way than to make your own position clear right at the start. Tell him something about your financial situation, the amount you might invest after taking care of living expenses and the usual emergencies, and the investment goal you have in mind."

What if I don't know exactly what my goal should be?

"You wouldn't be the first. Many brokers feel that one of their most important services is to help the investor understand himself—how much risk he can afford and how an investment might help him get what he wants out of life."

Suppose I just want to make some money?

"That's what everybody wants, but there are different ways to approach it."

"Yes. Some people want a second income from dividends, so they examine a stock's dividend record and current yield. Others can invest their money and leave it in the market to grow. Others want to put their money in securities where they think the risk is relatively small—maybe bonds or high-grade preferred stocks. But picking exactly the right security is not as simple as pushing a button. There is risk in any investment, stocks or anything else."

When we've agreed on a goal, can I leave the rest up to the broker?

"It's your money and you'll want to have the final say in what you buy. Ask your broker for several stocks to consider. Ask him about a company's earnings and dividend record. Ask for his own opinion of a company's prospects. Discuss the risks. His job is to help you reason your way to a sensible decision."

"Member firms operate under a remarkable set of rules. Some deal with a firm's finances—having adequate capital, for example, and periodic audits of their books. And the brokers must be full-time brokers. Rules like these—and there are hundreds of them—are the result of the Exchange's experience over 175 years."

Francona Goes To Phillies

By By MIKE RECHT

Tony Taylor's career as a first baseman, a temporary thing anyway, has been cut in half even before Philadelphia opened its 1967 baseball season today.

The Phillies shortened Taylor's try at first by acquiring veteran first sacker Tito Francona from the St. Louis Cardinals for an undisclosed amount of cash Monday.

Taylor, normally a second baseman, had been the scheduled replacement for Bill White, whose injured foot is expected to sideline him for several months. Now, the right-handed Taylor will be platooned with the left-handed Francona.

Francona, 33, appeared in 83 games for the Cardinals last year, hit four home runs and drove in 17 runs while hitting .212. Philadelphia will be his sixth stop after tours with Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and Baltimore in the American League and the Cardinals in his 10-year major league career.

To make room for him, the Phillies sent pitcher Bill Wilson outright to their San Diego farm club.

Another veteran got a new lease on his career as California offered Jim Piersall a contract after he trained without one this spring.

Piersall, 37, who has been in the major leagues since 1953 and with the Angels the last three years, hit .211 in 75 games last season.

The Angels also grabbed catcher Orlando McFarlane from Detroit on waivers and sent right-handed Fred Newman, southpaw Clyde Wright and catcher Merritt Ranew to Seattle. Shortstop Jack Hernandez was sent to Minnesota's Denver farm club, completing the trade that brought Jim Hall, Don Mincher and Pete Cimino to the Angels for Dean Chance.

The Chicago Cubs placed veteran infielder Felix Mantilla on the 21-day disabled list with a pulled tendon and added rookie pitcher Joe Nelkro and veteran catcher Dick Bertell to the roster.

Baltimore and Cleveland reached the 28-player limit as the Orioles optioned catcher Vic Roznovsky and pitcher Dave Leonhard to Rochester and the Indians returned rookie pitcher Billy Wynne to Jacksonville.

Houston optioned pitcher Danny Coombs to Asheville, N.C., returned catcher Doc Edwards to Oklahoma City and placed outfielder Alonzo Harris, 19, on the roster. The Astros decided not to activate coach Bob Lillis, a veteran infielder.

"To my darling wife Marcia - happy first anniversary from South Vietnam.

"All my love, your husband, Al. See you in June."

Marcia wept. "I was more than surprised. It was the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me," she said.

Her husband, Spec. 4 Alvin Baake Jr., 21, wrote to the newspaper from Vietnam asking about the cost of a full-page advertisement.

PITTSBURGH, PA. (AP) - Two men walked into a small neighborhood grocery store in Pittsburgh's Beltzhoover section and approached Margaret Kubisiak, 81, alone behind the counter.

"Do you wish to be waited on?" asked Mrs. Kubisiak.

One man pulled out a pistol.

"No," he said, "I want money."

"No," replied Mrs. Kubisiak.

"I'm not fooling," he said.

"Neither am I."

"I've got a gun."

"So do I," she said, and pointed a tear-gas pellet gun at the man.

He and his companion left.

"I don't care for that type," said Mrs. Kubisiak later.

A FEW INSTINCTIVE PRECAUTIONS CAN KEEP THIEVES FROM YOUR CAR

Would you encourage someone to steal your car?

"Heavens, no!" might be the startled response from any typical motorist. Yet how often drivers leave their automobiles easy prey to anyone with the slighest inclination of slipping furtively behind the wheel and pulling away. There's the car left unlocked in the supermarket lot, the one parked and running while the owner does a quick errand across the street, the family wagon -- loaded to the roof with luggage -- spending the night on a dark, deserted street. And how often car thieves take advantage of such ideal opportunities.

True, the professional thief can open a car and drive if off even if it is locked tight with the ignition key nowhere about. But the non-professional usually can't, and more than half the car thefts in the country are accomplished by amateurs. Many of them are teenagers "borrowing" the cars for freewheeling joyrides.

Even a professional, though, hesitates to break into a locked car -- in broad daylight, at least -- because of the attention his efforts can attract. At night, it's different. Under cover of darkness, thieves can often do their work totally unnoticed. That's why, at night, it is wise to go out of your way to park on well-lighted, busy streets -- near stores and restaurants, for example, where their is plenty of pedestrian and automobile traffic. Better yet, use an attended garage or parking lot.

In cooperation with the National Auto Theft Prevention Campaign coordinated by the U. S. Department of Justice, the American Oil Company advocates these practices for protecting your car -- day or night:

1. When you park (unless you're using an attended garage or lot), lock the ignition, close all the windows, lock all the doors, and take your keys with you -- even if you're going to be gone only a few minutes.

2. Keep clothes, cameras, luggage, and other valuables you're carrying, out of sight of bypassers. "Never transfer belongings into the trunk after you park," American Oil Advises. "A potential thief could be watching, and a glimpse of your 'goods' might be just the enticement he needs. Transfer them first, then park the car in another place."

3. When you leave your car, take along all credit cards, charge account identification, and other credentials a car thief could misuse at your expense.

4. Be prepared to help the police recover your car or accessories more quickly if they should be stolen. Record this information in your billfold or pocket secretary; year and make of car; state and city license numbers; vehicle identification number; engine number; number of keys, door, and trunk, make and numbers of the car radio and all the tires.

5. As an extreme precaution --if, for example, you live or work in an area where cars have been more susceptible to theft -- purchase an auto alarm. Alarms are available from locksmiths, auto-supply stores, garages, and some department stores. One common type is easily hooked up from the battery, with a switch you can turn on as you leave the car. When the alarm is on, anyone tampering with the ignition is quickly routed by a strident wail.

VOTE TO CONSOLIDATE MISSOURI UTILITIES FACILITIES with the BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

QUESTIONS CONCERNING THE BOND ISSUE.

Q. Does the Board of Public Works set the City Utility rates?
A. No. The Board of Public Works reports to the City Council on matters pertaining to rates. The City Council has the final decision on rate changes.

Q. What will prevent the Board of Public Works from raising rates if they have no competition?
A. The Board of Public Works was established in the beginning for the purpose of supplying electricity to Sikeston citizens at the lowest rates possible. All earnings by the City Utility operations go back into the operation as improvements, rate reductions or applied in some way that will benefit Sikeston citizens.

The City Council has final say-so on rates.

"Yardstick" competition will be present from other utility companies located in adjacent communities to compare rates with.

Q. If the Bond referendum is successful, will there be a rate increase?
A. NO. The members of the Board of Public Works pledged that rates will not be increased because of the action to consolidate facilities.

Q. Will rates decrease?
A. Customers being served by Missouri Utilities Company will get an immediate decrease in rates.

With added revenues to the City's operation, a strong possibility exists that a general rate reduction will be made.

Q. How will the Bond Issue be paid for?
A. The Bonds will be REVENUE BONDS and will be paid for from earnings of the electric department.

Q. Will it be necessary for the City to increase their tax rate?
A. NO. The City Utility operations contribute annually, as donated services, to the City some $60,000.00, which contributes to the present low tax rate. Mr. Raymert Miller has stated that: "Loss of tax moneys from Missouri Utilities operation in Sikeston will be more than compensated for with additional donated services and payment in lieu of taxes. It will not be necessary to increase the General Revenue Tax rate."

Q. Does the City have sufficient power available to supply the entire City?
A. Yes. Our interconnection with the Southwest Power Administration's system will provide the power needed to operate our system.

Q. Will this decrease the number of poles and equipment in any areas?
A. YES. Where facilities are duplicated and serving the same area and customers, one service will be removed.

With added revenues to the City's operation, a strong possibility exists that a general rate reduction will be made.

Q. How will the Bond Issue be paid for?
A. The Bonds will be REVENUE BONDS and will be paid for from earnings of the electric department.

Q. Will it be necessary for the City to increase their tax rate?
A. NO. The City Utility operations contribute annually, as donated services, to the City some $60,000.00, which contributes to the present low tax rate. Mr. Raymert Miller has stated that: "Loss of tax moneys from Missouri Utilities operation in Sikeston will be more than compensated for with additional donated services and payment in lieu of taxes. It will not be necessary to increase the General Revenue Tax rate."

Q. Does the City have sufficient power available to supply the entire City?
A. Yes. Our interconnection with the Southwest Power Administration's system will provide the power needed to operate our system.

Q. Will this decrease the number of poles and equipment in any areas?
A. YES. Where facilities are duplicated and serving the same area and customers, one service will be removed.

ELECTION LAWS MAY FINALLY BE REVISED

If a poll watcher or judge of an election in Missouri or a county clerk were to be asked a question concerning an election law, qualifications of candidates, hours polls are open, absentee ballots or other election matters, he might refer to the Revised Statutues of Missouri -- but few people would be surprised if he did not give up within a few minutes.

The state of present election laws has been described as "appalling" and "very confusing."

This session of the Legislature, although adding to the problems by introducing another 41 bills concerning changes in election procedures, may be the first to tackle the major problem of revising all current election laws and bringing them up to date.

Similar bills in the House and Senate provide for the establishment of an election law study commission which would include the Secretary of State, members of both houses, election commissioners and county clerks.

The commission would probably first have to turn to the Legislative Research department of the General Assembly which would codify all existing election laws.

This would be no small chore, as laws have been piling up since 1821 concerning election procedures -- and many of them already are in conflict with each other.

Finally, the commission would be charged with studying modern election procedures and recommending new legislation which might be adopted in the next session of the General Assembly.

Both the House and Senate bills have received committee approval and only await floor action before a commission would be appointed.

There appears to be little opposition to the bills -- few legislators deny there are many problems inherent in current election practices -- but the revision of the state's election laws certainly is not taking the Capitol by storm.

The problem may be more serious than envisioned. As Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick has pointed out, elections are the basis of our constitutional system, and each citizen must be guaranteed that his vote will count and that fraudulent election practices do not exist.

Kirkpatrick provided the impetus behind the election study commission when he appointed University of Missouri professor Robert Karsch to present a list of recommended election law changes to the Legislature. This has been done, but few of his proposals appear in the form of bills in the present session of the Legislature.

Other approaches have been proposed in this session -- such as campaign and election practices commission bill introduced by Sen. Richard Southern (D-Monroe City), but which appears to have little chance of passage since the function of such a commission -- given the power to investigate charges of election fraud and illegal practices and set up its own code of election standards -- appears to overlap with the operation of the election boards in St. Louis city and county.

In addition, the Senate elections committee in a hearing last week indicated they felt such a commission would hold the powers of legislator, prosecutor and judge of election practices -- somewhat bypassing the function of the Legislature.

As a result, a commission which would merely study current election problems and make recommended changes to the Legislature -- and at the same time recommending the abolishment of all outdated election laws now on the books -- seems to be the most acceptable approach to legislators.

HOUSE APPROVES PAROCHIAL SCHOOL BUS MEASURE

Few issues have raised public attention and such a wide number of state supreme court cases in the past decade as that of providing public transportation to children attending private and parochial schools.

Debated in several previous sessions in the Missouri General Assembly, Missouri citizens may finally have an opportunity to vote on the question in a proposed amendment to the Missouri constitution.

A bill authorizing such a referendum was given tentative approval in the Missouri House of Representatives last week, and is expected to be given final passage and sent to the Senate.

If approved by both houses, Missouri citizens could vote on the proposal in the 1968 general election, or at a special election designated by the governor.

During the floor debate of the measure, Rep. James Spainhower (D - Marshall), chairman of the House Education Committee, voiced his opposition to the bill and its precepts -- stating that he believed it violated the constitutional separation of church and state.

Spainhower was the sponsor this session of another controversial educational bill -- the so-called "shared time" bill -- which was recently passed by the House and would allow handicapped and educationally deprived children from private and parochial schools to attend special classes in public schools.

He drew a distinction between the shared time proposal and the "school bus bill" stating there was no connection between the two, and that he felt state funds used to carry private and parochial pupils to schools would amount to a subsidization of such institutions, and cause discontent among the state's citizens.

Rep. Charles A. Sheehan (D-House Springs), sponsor of the bill, said on the floor, "It is fallacious to say this bill would cause discord." He cited a recent decision by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in which that body's chief justice stated he saw no relation between parochial school bus bills and the support of the religions, as the bus bill only promotes the welfare and safety of all children, regardless of what schools they attend.

Private Enterprise And Public Responsibility In A Free Economy

Admittedly, the two cases I have cited represent specific and limited opportunities. But think of the immense impact if businesses all across the country focused on one or two public - service projects where they could contribute specialized knowledge. For instance, the "brain teams" that have figured out how to put a man on the moon should certainly be able to get a man to work a little more quickly and conveniently. This was underscored in the recent California experiment in which four aerospace companies, using systems analysis, drew up provocative long - range programs for coping with the state's problems of transportation, crime, pollution, and data communication. We in the business community have here an unusual chance to strengthen our free - opportunity system by demonstrating that our know-how can be brought to bear, quickly and effectively, on social and economic problems.

A second factor that business should take into account in designating areas for creative competition with government is selectivity. It should select those areas where there is a particular tendency today to look to government for help.

Industrial relations are a case in point. Some unions apparently are beginning to feel they are not big boys unless they can embroil the Mayor or the Secretary of Labor or even the President himself in their wage disputes. Yet labor relations experts are virtually unanimous in their agreement that too much government intervention stifles initiative and robs the collective bargaining process of its flexibility and self - government.

How much better it would be for labor and management to compete with government in this area by showing genuine originality in working out their own solutions. A few far - sighted companies and unions are trying to do just that through Joint Study Committees and the results to date are heartening. These committees work year-round on explosive issues that cannot be handled in the countdown atmosphere of a strike deadline, but can be talked out in a more leisurely forum. In many cases, the upshot has been a solution measuring up to the highest standards of both public responsibility and private freedom.

Management, by itself or in collaboration with unions, could also compete with government in the retaining of workers displaced through automation. True, a handful of companies have made a start in this direction, but much more could and should be done without looking to government for guidance and handouts. After all, unions and management have a common share in the nation's affluence, and a common stake in the progress of a country that gives the worker a better life than he has ever known since the wheels of the industrial revolution first began to turn.

Another area where Federal influence is becoming increasingly evident and where business could do more is education. It came as a shock to me the other day to learn that the Ivy League colleges, usually regarded as among the last private bastions of the liberal arts, now depend on the Federal Government for well over one - third of their total budgets.

To the Editor
The Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

Why do we fight Communists in Vietnam and help them everywhere else? This question about our contradictory foreign policy seems unanswerable.

Do we realize that we are at war? The President has said 'this is war'. It is, in fact, the third largest war in American history. Our enemy is the total communist bloc of nations, although we have declared war on no nation. Eighty percent of the North Vietnamese war effort is supplied by Soviet Russia and the Satellites. The North Vietnam war machine runs almost entirely on Russian oil. The greatest concentration of anti - aircraft weapons for the defense of a city has been provided by the Soviet Union. Russia recently shipped 100 new Mig fighters to Hanoi.

Late in 1966, in a speech, the President said: -- "We will reduce export controls on East-West trade with respect to hundreds of non - strategic items." The New York Times reported Oct. 13th: -- "Among the categories from which items have been selected for export relaxation are -- metal ores and scrap -- petroleum -- chemical compounds -- metal products and machinery -- scientific instruments --"; and on October 27th : -- "The Soviet Union and its allies agreed to grant North Vietnam assistance, in material and money, to about one billion dollars. Poland's contribution will be 30 million, it is said--"

Every American pilot and plane lost over North Vietnam can be credited to Moscow; yet every effort is made, by us, to strengthen this dictatorship, in the name of 'building-bridges of understanding and the relieving of cold - war tensions.'

Yours truly

(GO501) USS HANCOCK (CV-A-191 -- Airman Apprentice Danny O. Eaton, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Eaton of 835 Greer, Sikeston, Mo., has returned to combat duty off the coast of Vietnam after 10 days of rest and recreation in Sasebo, Japan, as a crewmember of the attack aircraft carrier Hancock.

While in Sasebo, the crew of the Hancock used their rest and recreation time hard at work. They did not tend boilers, launch planes or do any of their normal shipboard tasks, but spent their time repairing the World Missions Orphanage in Sasebo.

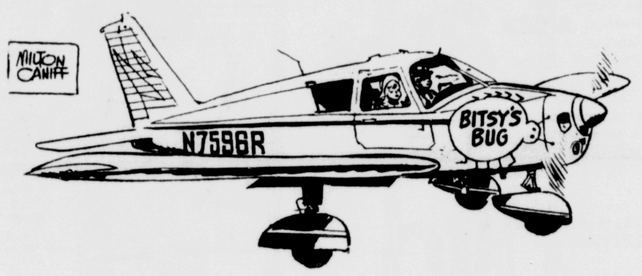
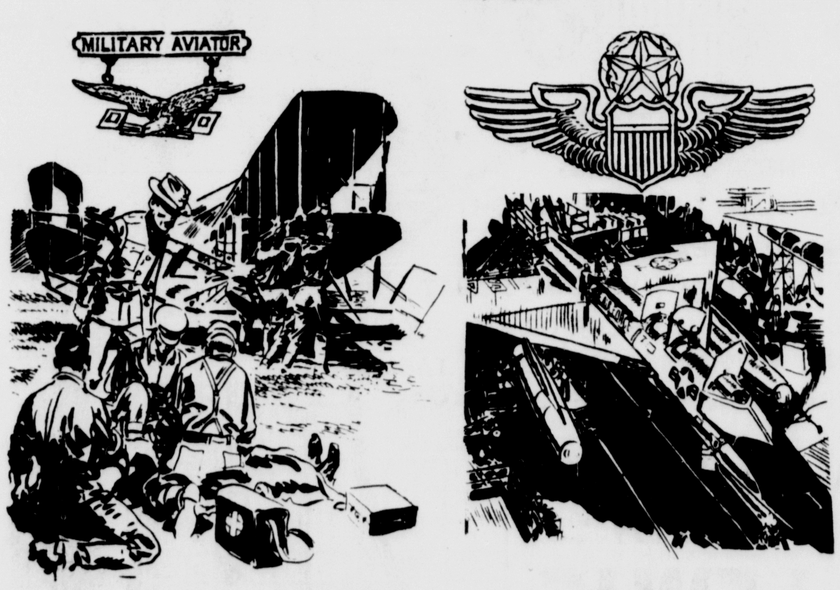
WHO ELSE BUT POTEET CANYON COULD FIND TROUBLE COVERING THE 50th ANNIVERSARY OF KELLY A.F. BASE?



Poteet Canyon, who could wheedle a smile out of a cigar store Indian, persuades Iron Myke, her city editor, to let her cover the 50th anniversary of Kelly Air Force Base, in San Antonio, Texas, and the Strawberry Festival at Poteet, Texas -- the town for which she was named.

But Myke insists that Poteet must pay her own way, so she makes a deal with Bitsy Beekman, a girl pilot - photographer -- and the two are off to San Antonio in Bitsy's plane.



Poteet and Bitsy are warmly received at Kelly A.F.B., named for Lt. George Kelly, the first pilot killed while flying a military aircraft. But when she returns to the High City Herald, Poteet finds two government agents waiting.

It seems that a shipment of heroin was flown out of Texas in a light plane, the registration numbers of which match Bitsy's Bug. And Bitsy and her plane have both vanished from the High City Airport.

Has Bitsy involved Poteet in a narcotics smuggling ring? Or is Bitsy herself the innocent victim of a plot by others?

Private Enterprise And Public Responsibility In A Free Economy

Admittedly, the two cases I have cited represent specific and limited opportunities. But think of the immense impact if businesses all across the country focused on one or two public - service projects where they could contribute specialized knowledge. For instance, the "brain teams" that have figured out how to put a man on the moon should certainly be able to get a man to work a little more quickly and conveniently. This was underscored in the recent California experiment in which four aerospace companies, using systems analysis, drew up provocative long - range programs for coping with the state's problems of transportation, crime, pollution, and data communication. We in the business community have here an unusual chance to strengthen our free - opportunity system by demonstrating that our know-how can be brought to bear, quickly and effectively, on social and economic problems.

A second factor that business should take into account in designating areas for creative competition with government is selectivity. It should select those areas where there is a particular tendency today to look to government for help.

Industrial relations are a case in point. Some unions apparently are beginning to feel they are not big boys unless they can embroil the Mayor or the Secretary of Labor or even the President himself in their wage disputes. Yet labor relations experts are virtually unanimous in their agreement that too much government intervention stifles initiative and robs the collective bargaining process of its flexibility and self - government.

How much better it would be for labor and management to compete with government in this area by showing genuine originality in working out their own solutions. A few far - sighted companies and unions are trying to do just that through Joint Study Committees and the results to date are heartening. These committees work year-round on explosive issues that cannot be handled in the countdown atmosphere of a strike deadline, but can be talked out in a more leisurely forum. In many cases, the upshot has been a solution measuring up to the highest standards of both public responsibility and private freedom.

Management, by itself or in collaboration with unions, could also compete with government in the retaining of workers displaced through automation. True, a handful of companies have made a start in this direction, but much more could and should be done without looking to government for guidance and handouts. After all, unions and management have a common share in the nation's affluence, and a common stake in the progress of a country that gives the worker a better life than he has ever known since the wheels of the industrial revolution first began to turn.

Another area where Federal influence is becoming increasingly evident and where business could do more is education. It came as a shock to me the other day to learn that the Ivy League colleges, usually regarded as among the last private bastions of the liberal arts, now depend on the Federal Government for well over one - third of their total budgets.

To the Editor
The Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir:

Why do we fight Communists in Vietnam and help them everywhere else? This question about our contradictory foreign policy seems unanswerable.

Do we realize that we are at war? The President has said 'this is war'. It is, in fact, the third largest war in American history. Our enemy is the total communist bloc of nations, although we have declared war on no nation. Eighty percent of the North Vietnamese war effort is supplied by Soviet Russia and the Satellites. The North Vietnam war machine runs almost entirely on Russian oil. The greatest concentration of anti - aircraft weapons for the defense of a city has been provided by the Soviet Union. Russia recently shipped 100 new Mig fighters to Hanoi.

Late in 1966, in a speech, the President said: -- "We will reduce export controls on East-West trade with respect to hundreds of non - strategic items." The New York Times reported Oct. 13th: -- "Among the categories from which items have been selected for export relaxation are -- metal ores and scrap -- petroleum -- chemical compounds -- metal products and machinery -- scientific instruments --"; and on October 27th : -- "The Soviet Union and its allies agreed to grant North Vietnam assistance, in material and money, to about one billion dollars. Poland's contribution will be 30 million, it is said--"

Every American pilot and plane lost over North Vietnam can be credited to Moscow; yet every effort is made, by us, to strengthen this dictatorship, in the name of 'building-bridges of understanding and the relieving of cold - war tensions.'

Yours truly

Armed Forces

(GO501) USS HANCOCK (CV-A-191 -- Airman Apprentice Danny O. Eaton, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Eaton of 835 Greer, Sikeston, Mo., has returned to combat duty off the coast of Vietnam after 10 days of rest and recreation in Sasebo, Japan, as a crewmember of the attack aircraft carrier Hancock.

While in Sasebo, the crew of the Hancock used their rest and recreation time hard at work. They did not tend boilers, launch planes or do any of their normal shipboard tasks, but spent their time repairing the World Missions Orphanage in Sasebo.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK. -- Lieutenant Colonel John Williamson, president, Blytheville chapter 26, Reserve Officers' Association, announced Tuesday that Mr. A. W. "Bill" Fisher, general manager, Memphis Cotton Carnival Association and public relations specialist will be the feature speaker at the monthly ROA luncheon.

In addition to Mr. Fisher, Colonel Ralph Stovall will add comments of ROA experience to the locals during Wednesday's luncheon at the Officers' Open Mess, 12 April.

Mr. Fisher is scheduled to address the members of the Cotton Carnival in relation to its impact on the mid -south area.

Mr. Fisher is presently retired from the Marine Corps Reserves. He joined the Maries at age 16 and served four years during World War II with the "Carlson Raiders."

Now the father of 10 children, he graduated from Loyola University, New Orleans, and received an LLB from Memphis State University.

He has worked 10 years with the National Biscuit Company, five years with the Savings Bond Division, Internal Revenue Department and 3½ years at his present position.

Colonel Williamson also announced that the current membership drive sponsored locally is "doing splendidly."

"Presently we have gained 20 members of our desired goal," said Colonel Williamson. "Our chapter emphasizes that membership is the life blood of our organization. Every officer, active, reserve and retired, needs ROA and ROA needs every officer as a member."

"All officers are welcome to attend this informative meeting," concluded Colonel Williamson.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. -- Airman First Class John A. Curran, son of U. S. Army ret. Sergeant Joseph Curran of 8124 Bethany Drive, El Paso, Tex., is attending the Air University (AU) academic instructor course at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Airman Curran was specially selected for the intensive six-week professional training that is conducted as part of the AU Academic Instructor and Allied Officer School, the teachers college of the U. S. Air Force.

PHOENIX, Ariz. -- Technical Sergeant Thomas L. McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester McCoy of 208 Delmar, Sikeston, Mo., has been awarded the U. S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award at Luke AFB, Ariz.

Sergeant McCoy, a training technician, received the award as a permanent decoration for helping the 4510th Combat Crew Training Wing achieve an exceptionally meritorious rating from January 1964 through December 1965.

The 4510th was cited for exceptional service in combat crew training, supplying combat qualified fighter pilots for the Tactical Air Command and Pacific Air Forces, and for training allied fighter pilots in the F-5 Freedom Fighter and F-104 Super Starfighter aircraft.

Guatemala, which faces both the Caribbean Sea and the Pacific Ocean, has the largest population of any Central American republic. Approximately 70 per cent of its people are farmers producing coffee, bananas and the world's best chicle, which is a basic ingredient of chewing gum.

WHO ELSE BUT POTEET CANYON COULD FIND TROUBLE COVERING THE 50th ANNIVERSARY OF KELLY A.F. BASE?

Poteet Canyon, who could wheedle a smile out of a cigar store Indian, persuades Iron Myke, her city editor, to let her cover the 50th anniversary of Kelly Air Force Base, in San Antonio, Texas, and the Strawberry Festival at Poteet, Texas -- the town for which she was named.

But Myke insists that Poteet must pay her own way, so she makes a deal with Bitsy Beekman, a girl pilot - photographer -- and the two are off to San Antonio in Bitsy's plane.

Poteet and Bitsy are warmly received at Kelly A.F.B., named for Lt. George Kelly, the first pilot killed while flying a military aircraft. But when she returns to the High City Herald, Poteet finds two government agents waiting.

It seems that a shipment of heroin was flown out of Texas in a light plane, the registration numbers of which match Bitsy's Bug. And Bitsy and her plane have both vanished from the High City Airport.

Has Bitsy involved Poteet in a narcotics smuggling ring? Or is Bitsy herself the innocent victim of a plot by others?

"Dead As Dormouse"

The term "dead as a dormouse" stems from the fact that the dormouse, small rodent which inhabits the colder climates, hibernates in its winter nest and often sleeps as long as six months at a time, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Readers: In all the years I have been writing this column I have never received such a barrage of vitriolic, abusive and downright nasty letters as was provoked by my plea for tighter gun laws. I printed some of the less venomous letters yesterday and promised that today I would print the best letter in support of my position. I am happy to say it was written by a teenager. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old boy who agrees emphatically with your stand on the easy availability of guns.

You asked you readers to write to their senators and congressmen urging them to pass some decent gun laws. If you know anything about human nature, Ann Landers, you know that very few people will take the time and trouble to do it. They may agree with you but that's as far as they will go. I have a suggestion which I hope you will consider worthy.

Why don't YOU write a letter and print it in the paper and ask your readers to tear it out and mail it to their senator or congressman in Washington? This is to let them know we want a federal law prohibiting the shipment of guns across state lines. Instruct your readers to write the following message across the column: "Please read this column and then forward it to the Speaker of The House in Our State Legislature." This is to let HIM know we also want state laws strictly controlling sale and registration of all kinds of guns.

If several thousand columns hit the desks of our legislators (both national and state), we will surely get the kind of action we need to make this country a safer and saner place to live. Thank you. --- R.S.F. OF CHICAGO

Dear Chicago Teen: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. Below is the letter which I hope will be torn out of thousands of newspapers and sent to the senators and congressmen in Washington. If you don't know the name of your senator or congressman, call your newspaper and don't forget to follow the boy's suggestion and jot down a request that he forward the column to the speaker of your state legislature.

Dear Lawmaker: Do you want to buy a gun? Well, go right ahead. Nobody will ask you how old you are, if you are a mental defective, if you have a criminal record, or if you know how to use firearms properly. If you can pay for a gun you can have one --- a rifle, a bazooka, a pistol, an anti-tank blaster, any kind of gun your little heart desires.

If you can't get to a gun store or a pawn shop, fill out a coupon and get a gun through the mail. Lee Oswald did it and nothing has changed since then. You can do it, too.

If all this sounds unsettling, let me assure you it is. I am writing to you because you and you alone can put an end to this appalling situation. We need a federal law to prohibit the shipment of guns across state lines. We need state laws that make it mandatory for every gun owner to be registered.

According to the Gallup Poll taken in January for NBC, approximately 75% of the American people want tougher gun laws. We have no paid lobbyists, no organization to espouse our cause, no one to speak for us, so we must speak for ourselves. We ask your help, Mr. Lawmaker, in the name of the 17,000 Americans who died last year from gunshot wounds. --- SINCERELY,

Your Constituent

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE DEPRIVED BOXER

Barney agreed to fight a 10-rounder with Muscles McGirk under a contract that provided for strict compliance with the rules of the State Athletic Commission. One rule, in particular, provided for no hitting below the belt.

In the second round, Barney unleashed a devastating uppercut that started from the floor and landed south of Muscle McGirk's border. The result? McGirk was completely disabled and the fight was halted. And so was payment on Barney's purse.

"You forfeited it," the fight promoter told him. "You breached your contract by violating the State Athletic rule against hitting below the belt."

"That's ridiculous," was Barney's answer. "I didn't hit McGirk below the belt on purpose. I was aiming for his chin. Because the punch was a little off course is no reason to hold back my purse."

Intent upon collecting it, Barney put on the gloves with the promoter in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you give Barney the decision?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order to collect under a contract, a sizeable portion of the contract must be carried out. And, in this case, there was not a substantial performance since, due to Barney's foul, the 10-round fight lasted for only two rounds. What's more, the judge concluded, whether or not the foul was deliberate made no difference. It was an act which Barney had contracted not to do.

(Based upon a 1916 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Readers: In all the years I have been writing this column I have never received such a barrage of vitriolic, abusive and downright nasty letters as was provoked by my plea for tighter gun laws. I printed some of the less venomous letters yesterday and promised that today I would print the best letter in support of my position. I am happy to say it was written by a teenager. Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old boy who agrees emphatically with your stand on the easy availability of guns.

You asked you readers to write to their senators and congressmen urging them to pass some decent gun laws. If you know anything about human nature, Ann Landers, you know that very few people will take the time and trouble to do it. They may agree with you but that's as far as they will go. I have a suggestion which I hope you will consider worthy.

Why don't YOU write a letter and print it in the paper and ask your readers to tear it out and mail it to their senator or congressman in Washington? This is to let them know we want a federal law prohibiting the shipment of guns across state lines. Instruct your readers to write the following message across the column: "Please read this column and then forward it to the Speaker of The House in Our State Legislature." This is to let HIM know we also want state laws strictly controlling sale and registration of all kinds of guns.

If several thousand columns hit the desks of our legislators (both national and state), we will surely get the kind of action we need to make this country a safer and saner place to live. Thank you. --- R.S.F. OF CHICAGO

Dear Chicago Teen: Thank you for an excellent suggestion. Below is the letter which I hope will be torn out of thousands of newspapers and sent to the senators and congressmen in Washington. If you don't know the name of your senator or congressman, call your newspaper and don't forget to follow the boy's suggestion and jot down a request that he forward the column to the speaker of your state legislature.

Dear Lawmaker: Do you want to buy a gun? Well, go right ahead. Nobody will ask you how old you are, if you are a mental defective, if you have a criminal record, or if you know how to use firearms properly. If you can pay for a gun you can have one --- a rifle, a bazooka, a pistol, an anti-tank blaster, any kind of gun your little heart desires.

If you can't get to a gun store or a pawn shop, fill out a coupon and get a gun through the mail. Lee Oswald did it and nothing has changed since then. You can do it, too.

If all this sounds unsettling, let me assure you it is. I am writing to you because you and you alone can put an end to this appalling situation. We need a federal law to prohibit the shipment of guns across state lines. We need state laws that make it mandatory for every gun owner to be registered.

According to the Gallup Poll taken in January for NBC, approximately 75% of the American people want tougher gun laws. We have no paid lobbyists, no organization to espouse our cause, no one to speak for us, so we must speak for ourselves. We ask your help, Mr. Lawmaker, in the name of the 17,000 Americans who died last year from gunshot wounds. --- SINCERELY,

Your Constituent

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE DEPRIVED BOXER

Barney agreed to fight a 10-rounder with Muscles McGirk under a contract that provided for strict compliance with the rules of the State Athletic Commission. One rule, in particular, provided for no hitting below the belt.

In the second round, Barney unleashed a devastating uppercut that started from the floor and landed south of Muscle McGirk's border. The result? McGirk was completely disabled and the fight was halted. And so was payment on Barney's purse.

"You forfeited it," the fight promoter told him. "You breached your contract by violating the State Athletic rule against hitting below the belt."

"That's ridiculous," was Barney's answer. "I didn't hit McGirk below the belt on purpose. I was aiming for his chin. Because the punch was a little off course is no reason to hold back my purse."

Intent upon collecting it, Barney put on the gloves with the promoter in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you give Barney the decision?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in order to collect under a contract, a sizeable portion of the contract must be carried out. And, in this case, there was not a substantial performance since, due to Barney's foul, the 10-round fight lasted for only two rounds. What's more, the judge concluded, whether or not the foul was deliberate made no difference. It was an act which Barney had contracted not to do.

(Based upon a 1916 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

A U.S. government source said there would be agreement on a tentative declaration, but it was obvious the foreign ministers would have to leave over some thorny matters for the consideration of their chiefs.

One of these was the general question of trade and credits.

Another was the preamble to the declaration. There has been no agreement on this after many hours of discussion among the foreign ministers. The United States wanted mention of political considerations, such as resistance to communism and devotion to democratic processes, but met with stiff resistance.

The big snags were in the area of economics, which is what this meeting is all about. The summit conference is billed as an attempt to accelerate the Alliance for Progress and set in motion the formation of a common market for Latin America.

The U.S. government source said Washington would be pleased if it could untie U.S. aid dollars and permit the Latin-American nations to spend them in markets other than the United States. He described the desire of some nations to do this as an urgent one.

But he pointed out that the U.S. government must take into consideration its problem of an unfavorable balance of payments. Undoubtedly, the issue will be discussed by the chiefs of state at their meetings which begin Wednesday.

Once again the foreign ministers labored into the morning in an attempt to accommodate conflicting views. They are expected to repeat the performance tonight after a busy day welcoming their heads of state to this heavily guarded resort town.

By Wednesday there should be a tentative declaration for the presidents to consider. The presidents may change the text, but the positions of many governments represented here are fairly well fixed, and agreement on the major points of conflict seemed unlikely.

The Latin Americans hoped Johnson would bring a major concession of some kind, either on the issue of the loan and credit dollars now restricted to purchases of U.S. products or some sort of preferential treatment for Latin-American goods in the U.S. market.

U.S. representatives countered demands for Latin access to U.S. markets with the statement that only Johnson had power to do anything. They cited the balance of payments situation when the talk turned to removal of restrictions on the spending of aid funds.

The conference meetings continue Thursday and the final session will be held Friday morning.

Meanwhile, a Communist youth march continued along the road from Montevideo to Punta del Este to "repudiate" the summit conference in general and President Johnson in particular. By Monday night the marchers had covered about 50 of the 70 miles, but half of the original 200 had dropped out.

"I'm thrilled. I never thought about winning but I'm glad I did," she said. Film work in New York kept her from the ceremonies.

A high point came when Patricia Neal, in a long purple and yellow gown, limped onstage to make her first appearance since three strokes nearly killed her in 1965.

Given a standing ovation, she said: "It really is wonderful, wonderful, to be back with you."

An ABC television crew rehearsed the show with participants through the weekend in hopes a strike by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists would be settled.

Hope, introduced as "America's comic conscience" to preside at Oscar ceremonies for the 13th time, explained:

devices could not be openly advertised.

One opponent said it would be ridiculous to ban such advertising. Young People would get the information in an underground fashion anyway and "that sort of information is very often erroneous."

As the debate went on the galleries were well-filled with delegates to the annual "sophomore pilgrimage" of high school students.

Monday, the House passed a bill to let unemployed fathers live at home and still allow their families to receive aid to dependent children.

It would require the father to be actively seeking employment.

The bill was recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Sponsors said it would prevent the breakup of families and stop the practice of fathers hiding out so their families could continue to get ADC payments.

Monday night a Senate committee recommended a bill to prevent wiretapping by anyone, including law enforcement officers. The minimum penalty would be 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Any person who used an electronic device to record a conversation between others for the purpose of harming them could be prosecuted.

A House committee heard a bill that would require all public schools in the state to be in a high school district but no immediate action was taken. Only about 300 of the 800 school districts in the state are in high school districts now.

The committee also heard a bill authorizing a district to levy a special tax to transport students to and from state colleges and junior colleges—a program already in effect in Mexico, Mo.

Earlier the House crippled a bill to ban the importation of strikebreakers. When the penalty clause was removed, sponsors shelved it.

The Senate advanced a long sought bill to let voters decide whether to have a cheaper alternative form of county government.

They could vote to have an elected supervisor or a commissioner, appointed by the county court and several county offices would be consolidated or abolished.

Two years ago a similar bill passed the Senate but was killed in a House committee.

Tenn., merchandise manager for the Quality Stamp Co., testified first. Sutton said that Waldman ordered two color television sets from the Quality Stamp Co. in November, 1966, to be sent to Harold Bruce, a Caruthersville grocer.

Sutton testified that Waldman said the televisions were to be used in a promotion at grocery stores owned by Bruce.

Waldman picked up the sets when they arrived at the Quality Stamp redemption center in Sikeston, Sutton said. Payment was never received for the sets, he said. The invoice was sent to Bruce.

The sets were taken from Waldman's house March 1, by Deputy Sheriff Eddie Michael after a search warrant was obtained, Potashnick said.

Sutton was asked by the defendant's lawyer if he ever billed Waldman for the television sets. Sutton said he did not.

Sutton was then asked if Waldman had requested billing for the televisions, and Sutton said Waldman had asked to be billed in January.

Harold Bruce testified that he never requested Waldman to order two color television sets for any promotion, and that he never received the television sets.

Mrs. Lova Dickson, manager of the Qualify Stamp redemption center in Sikeston, testified that the television sets were received by the store, but she did not know who picked them up.

A study of 1,300 women taking oral contraceptives - some of whom have been on the pill for as long as 11 years - has revealed no serious ill effects among the entire group.

This significant news was reported recently by a team of three scientists headed by Gregory Pincus, D. Sc., Research Director of the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, Shrewsbury, Mass. Dr. Pincus is one of the developers of the pill. His co-investigators were Hector Rocamora, M.D., senior scientist at the Foundation; and Celso-Ramon Garcia, M.D., Chief of the Fertility and Endocrine Clinic of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

Noting that the "follow-up of these oral contraceptive users probably represents the most sizeable, longest-term oral contraceptive patient pools anywhere in the world," the report shows the following:

Not a single case of thrombophlebitis with pulmonary embolism (blood clot) developed in the entire period. According to medical experts at least one non-pregnant woman in a thousand in the childbearing years can be expected to develop this circulatory problem. Not one of the 1,300 women on the pill has developed the condition.

Not a single breast cancer developed in the long-term users, according to Dr. Pincus. Not a single uterine cancer traceable to the pill developed in all that time. The report shows that of the five cases of such cancer found among the women, all had originated before the women had begun using the pill.

A total of 16 unplanned pregnancies occurred over the whole period of time, and 15 of these were due to "improper adherence to the regimen." All but one of the infants were normal. This baby was born blind, to a mother who had had German measles during the first three months of pregnancy.

There was not a single case of heart or circulatory disease, or of jaundice, among the pill users.

Over the 11-year period, five women in the study died, four of causes unrelated to the pill. The exact cause of death of the fifth woman had not been determined when the report was made.

Some of the women reported minor side effects, which were more frequent in the early months of treatment and disappeared with continued use of the pill. Most common complaints were nausea, vomiting, loss of appetite, bloating and some weight gain.

FURTHER REASSURANCE

Asked to comment on the report, which was made at the meeting here of the American Association of Planned Parenthood Physicians, Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, President of Planned Parenthood/World Population, told Women's Medical News Service:

"These reassuring observations are most welcome. They are in keeping with recent reports released by the World Health Organization, the Food and Drug Administration, and England's Dunlop Committee.

"The fact that Dr. Pincus and his associates kept a sample of 1,300 pill users under close observation over many years and noted no pathological sequelae makes the report a significant contribution.

"For the physician who recognizes the unique value of the pill in the prevention of unplanned conceptions, it is heartening to read the increasing number of reports accumulating in the literature attesting its short and long term safety."

Seventy-two percent (or 194,000) of the 300,000 women who came to Planned Parenthood centers for family planning are on the pill. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 American women use the oral contraceptive and that 11,000,000 women world-wide do so.

BOOK OF THE AGES

The Bible is the one book of the ages -- of all ages and all climes. Man's present unbelief seeks to loosen its authority, to dilute its statements, to render indefinite its doctrines. But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. God is not man that He should lie. His Word is sure, His truth is everlasting, His Book is like the sun in the firmament; a light for all ages and lands.

He's seen a lot of changes in telephone service

"And those changes have been for the better," says Mr. Schwent, deskman at Flat River, Missouri.

"When I started to work we had a bunch of rusty iron wire strung between white cedar poles," he recalls. "Every time we'd get a good wind storm there'd be maybe 200 cases of trouble. Now we've got cable—a lot of it underground—and big microwave towers. Storms don't give us much trouble at all. In fact, I'd say service has improved 100 per cent.

"Our new dial equipment has speeded calls quite a bit. And transmission quality is so much improved it's hard to believe."

What about the changes coming in the next 40 years?

"Nothing is impossible in this business," Schwent maintains. "Used to be our best service was a four-party line with battery-operated phones. Now they're testing Picturephone. I wouldn't be surprised at whatever comes along."

Whatever comes along will come because of people like Fred Schwent. He and more than 14,000 other Southwestern Bell people in Missouri-Illinois have one thing in common. They're working to make your telephone service better than ever.

Sutton was then asked if Waldman had requested billing for the televisions, and Sutton said Waldman had asked to be billed in January.

Harold Bruce testified that he never requested Waldman to order two color television sets for any promotion, and that he never received the television sets.

Mrs. Lova Dickson, manager of the Qualify Stamp redemption center in Sikeston, testified that the television sets were received by the store, but she did not know who picked them up.

A study of 1,300 women taking oral contraceptives - some of whom have been on the pill for as long as 11 years - has revealed no serious ill effects among the entire group.

This significant news was reported recently by a team of three scientists headed by Gregory Pincus, D. Sc., Research Director of the Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology, Shrewsbury, Mass. Dr. Pincus is one of the developers of the pill. His co-investigators were Hector Rocamora, M.D., senior scientist at the Foundation; and Celso-Ramon Garcia, M.D., Chief of the Fertility and Endocrine Clinic of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

Noting that the "follow-up of these oral contraceptive users probably represents the most sizeable, longest-term oral contraceptive patient pools anywhere in the world," the report shows the following:

Not a single case of thrombophlebitis with pulmonary embolism (blood clot) developed in the entire period. According to medical experts at least one non-pregnant woman in a thousand in the childbearing years can be expected to develop this circulatory problem. Not one of the 1,300 women on the pill has developed the condition.

Not a single breast cancer developed in the long-term users, according to Dr. Pincus. Not a single uterine cancer traceable to the pill developed in all that time. The report shows that of the five cases of such cancer found among the women, all had originated before the women had begun using the pill.

A total of 16 unplanned pregnancies occurred over the whole period of time, and 15 of these were due to "improper adherence to the regimen." All but one of the infants were normal. This baby was born blind, to a mother who had had German measles during the first three months of pregnancy.

There was not a single case of heart or circulatory disease, or of jaundice, among the pill users.

Over the 11-year period, five women in the study died, four of causes unrelated to the pill. The exact cause of death of the fifth woman had not been determined when the report was made.

Some of the women reported minor side effects, which were more frequent in the early months of treatment and disappeared with continued use of the pill. Most common complaints were nausea, vomiting, loss of appetite, bloating and some weight gain.

FURTHER REASSURANCE

Asked to comment on the report, which was made at the meeting here of the American Association of Planned Parenthood Physicians, Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, President of Planned Parenthood/World Population, told Women's Medical News Service:

"These reassuring observations are most welcome. They are in keeping with recent reports released by the World Health Organization, the Food and Drug Administration, and England's Dunlop Committee.

"The fact that Dr. Pincus and his associates kept a sample of 1,300 pill users under close observation over many years and noted no pathological sequelae makes the report a significant contribution.

"For the physician who recognizes the unique value of the pill in the prevention of unplanned conceptions, it is heartening to read the increasing number of reports accumulating in the literature attesting its short and long term safety."

Seventy-two percent (or 194,000) of the 300,000 women who came to Planned Parenthood centers for family planning are on the pill. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 American women use the oral contraceptive and that 11,000,000 women world-wide do so.

BOOK OF THE AGES

The Bible is the one book of the ages -- of all ages and all climes. Man's present unbelief seeks to loosen its authority, to dilute its statements, to render indefinite its doctrines. But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. God is not man that He should lie. His Word is sure, His truth is everlasting, His Book is like the sun in the firmament; a light for all ages and lands.

He's seen a lot of changes in telephone service

"And those changes have been for the better," says Mr. Schwent, deskman at Flat River, Missouri.

"When I started to work we had a bunch of rusty iron wire strung between white cedar poles," he recalls. "Every time we'd get a good wind storm there'd be maybe 200 cases of trouble. Now we've got cable—a lot of it underground—and big microwave towers. Storms don't give us much trouble at all. In fact, I'd say service has improved 100 per cent.

"Our new dial equipment has speeded calls quite a bit. And transmission quality is so much improved it's hard to believe."

What about the changes coming in the next 40 years?

"Nothing is impossible in this business," Schwent maintains. "Used to be our best service was a four-party line with battery-operated phones. Now they're testing Picturephone. I wouldn't be surprised at whatever comes along."

Whatever comes along will come because of people like Fred Schwent. He and more than 14,000 other Southwestern Bell people in Missouri-Illinois have one thing in common. They're working to make your telephone service better than ever.
